TODAY "TOM" LAWSON, author of "Frenzied Finance" and an active figure in much frenzied finance of his own, will be buried close to his wife on the magnificent estate that he once owned. Wall Street took it away from him.

WHEN HE WAS sixteen he made $40,000 in Wall Street. In twenty years of Wall Street life he made forty millions of dollars, and Wall Street took it back.

The old croupier at Monte Carlo's gambling house said to this writer long ago: "We don't have to worry about profits. While they have money the stranger's stay and gamble or spend it in our hotels. When they haven't any more money they go. The money stays with us."

So with Wall Street, if you gamble.

THE UNFORTUNATE Prophet of Doom is feeling better, although the world didn't end when he said it would.

He has several excuses. Flashlights of photographers interfered with the Divine powers. That seems strange when you consider the number of flashing lights existing in this universe.

Also the moon's eclipse on Sunday and the very heavy Long Island fog yesterday proved that the world very nearly ended.

BEST OF ALL, Reidt, who sold his potatoes, his Ford car and little hut, thinking he wouldn't need them any more, need shed no tears. The notoriety the newspapers have given him will enable him to buy a bigger house, a bigger car and fill his cellar with potatoes. There is nothing like advertising.

IT IS REPORTED and denied that Balto, magnificent Siberian wolfhound, leader in the dog team that carried the anti-toxin to Nome, is dead. Some of the dogs had their lungs frozen. All the blood in their bodies could not sufficiently heat the air that entered the lungs.

BUT THE HEROISM of that particular dog is no excuse for the stupidity that keeps wolfhounds, dangerous sometimes to their owners, and nearly always dangerous to others, in crowded cities.

When a man's wolfhound, police dog, or other huge animal, bites a child, the punishment should be the same as if the owner of the dog had been guilty of criminal assault.

YOU NOTICE that some of our biggest and most prosperous "best minds" have always been bitter toward the government of Russia.

They don't want Russia recognized by this nation. They want every little child in the cradle to be taught to shudder when the word "Soviet" is spoken.

OUR "LEADING MINDS" are intelligent. They know what is good for them and what isn't.

Yesterday's news from Russia told of seven men who had been sentenced to death, merely for grafting, on an extensive scale at the expense of the public, and treacherously selling out their government.

A NATION doing that sort of thing, of course, doesn't please certain "leading minds" in America. For instance, those that engineered the matter of the naval oil supplies. And it does not please those that would deprive the United States of adequate air defence, because some steel men and the oil men want the profits from big battleships.

SECRETARY WEEKS seems to discover in the demand for an adequate air defence some reflection on General Pershing or other able generals. That is imaginary. To say that a family needs an automobile is not to reflect upon the old family coachman. He was a good coachman, all honor to him. But the coachman is out of date. What you want now is a good

HUSBAND WINS SONS AS JUDGE DISMISSES SEPARATION ACTION

Newport, R. I., Feb. 10.—Declaring that Milton J. Budlong, millionaire automobile manufacturer, appeared to be "the real sufferer," Judge A. A. Capotosto in Newport Superior Court, today denied the separation suit of his wife, Mrs. Jessie M. Budlong, prominent Newport and New York society matron.

Mrs. Budlong brought her suit on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment, gross misbehavior and failure to provide.

In denying the petition Judge Capotosto gave the father custody of the couple's two young sons, Milton, Jr., nine years old, and John, twelve years old.

Custody of the children was made contingent on Budlong's keeping the boys within the jurisdiction of the Newport County Court. If he wishes to take them outside the court's jurisdiction he must file a bond of $50,000.

"UNWARRANTABLY JEALOUS."

"Money was the key with which the desired 'end was to be accomplished, and this Mrs. Budlong secured from her husband through various means," said Judge Capotosto in his decision.

"Social ambition and a desire to have control of unlimited funds, oversensitiveness, firm determination and unwarranted jealousy and suspicion are the prominent characteristics of the petitioner, as described by the evidence in the case," continued the judge.

"Mr. Budlong has been lavish in the support and maintenance of his wife and family. The charge that he neglected to provide necessaries according to his means is unjust.

"As to the allegation of cruel and abusive treatment, the evidence denies the accusation of the petitioner. The evidence produced to sustain the charge of gross misbehavior is based solely upon conjecture and suspicion. The testimony clearly disproves this unwarranted charge and leaves Mr. Budlong as the real sufferer at the hands of his wife through charges inconsiderately made which were unfounded in fact.

BOYS IN SAD PLIGHT.

"The unfortunate position of the two boys, John and Milton, reflects the saddest aspect of this case. They are regular boys and as such they should be subject to discipline and permitted to enjoy reasonable privileges of youngsters of their age. This court is of the opinion that these desirable characteristic not only cannot be developed, but on the contrary, will be stifled in the atmosphere in which the children are living."

LOCOMOTIVE KILLS 6 AT R. R. CROSSING

Chester, Pa., Feb. 10.—Four men and two women were killed and another woman seriously injured today when a shifting locomotive on the Pennsylvania Railroad struck a motor truck and motor car at a grade crossing in Marcus Hook, near here.

CONTRACT OF PHONE COMPANIES BARED

The famous contract between the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company and the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, was discussed today by President Matt B. Jones of the local organization.

Continuing his direct examination of President Jones before the Department of Public Utilities, on the company's request for increases in rates, Attorney Ralph Stewart offered a copy of the contract as an exhibit.

It was dated June 11, 1920, but President Jones testified that prior to that time contractural relations had existed between the two companies from October 31, 1883.

These relations, he said, were two-

CURLEY HAILS JEWEL MEDAL FOR FIREMEN

Mayor Curley has given his wholehearted support and approval to the plan of the Boston Evening American for the rewarding of Boston's most conspicuous fire department heroes.

Semi-annually the Boston Fire Department Diamond Medal will be conferred on the outstanding fire fighter of the preceding six months. With the medal goes an award of $100 in gold to the fireman's wife or nearest woman relative.

A committee of three is to be selected to judge the merits of the fire-fighters who are to receive the medals. The first award will be made August 1, next; the second on February 1, 1926, and subsequent

VICTIMS SILENT ON SHOOTING

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Viola of No. 497 Hanover street, North End, victims of mysterious shooting in their home today. Neither will discuss the case. They were found wounded in separate rooms. Both will recover. Police are baffled in their efforts to solve the strange near-tragedy.

A husband and wife, each suffering from bullet wounds, are at the Haymarket Relief Hospital and refuse to tell the police anything concerning the double shooting.

Michael Viola, thirty-one years old, the husband, was found in one room at his apartment at No. 497 Hanover street, North End with a bullet in his shoulder. In an adjacent room, his wife, Mary, nineteen years old, had a wound in her left elbow and her left hip. In the doorway between the two rooms police found a 38-calibre revolver from which the bullets had been fired, apparently.

Half an hour before the shooting, neighbors declared the man and his wife were laughing and chatting together.

Both will recover.

Market Closed

THE ticker's silenced and the market ended.
No voices echo, for there are no voices.
Here where The Street his every move attended,
None now remains to call his changing choices.

THE tape lies strewn, forgotten on the floor.
The slate is clear of figures. Shadows fall
Across the skylight of the canyon door
And night is down on State and Broad and Wall.

NEVER again the tip will run The Street
That, "Tom is buying copper, selling steel!"
Or, "Lawson's in on this, the boy's a beat!"
"Watch out for silver. Lawson's in the deal!"

NO more The Street will watch assistance the fall
Or rise he figured while the market closed.
The night is down on State and Broad and Wall.
The ticker's silenced and the market closed.

LAWSON'S FUNERAL A SIMPLE SERVICE

Thomas W. Lawson, late wizard of finance was laid to rest with simple ceremonies in the massive granite vault adjoining "The Nest" the famous "Love Cottage" on Dreamwood estate at Scituate this afternoon.

Former business associates and two sons of Lawson bore the remains of the financier to its last resting place while the chimes atop Dreamwold Tower tolled the sweet strains of "Abide With Me."

While hundreds of friends gathered with members of the Lawson family about the flower-bedecked casket, the Rev. John W. Suter of Boston pronounced the last benedictions.

Men who had fought with and against Lawson stood with bowed heads and with tears coursing down their cheeks as the casket bearing the body of the famous financier was placed beside that of his wife.

COLLINS, CAPTIVE 11 DAYS, STILL LIVES; CAVE PROBE BEGUN

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 10.—Floyd Collins is alive after 11 days in Sand Cave, new tests today showed. The rescue shaft is now 38 feet deep.

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 10 (A.P.)—William B. Miller, reporter for the Louisville Courier Journal, was the first witness summoned before a military court of inquiry today into the trapping of Floyd Collins in Sand Cave.

Miller was one of the leading rescuers and made repeated trips into Sand cave in efforts to free Collins before the cave passageway was blocked by slides and a rising of the floor.

"I arrived at Cave City about 9 a. m. February 3," said Miller. "At the cave I found six or eight men standing around the outside. Two boys were also there.

"I met Homer and Marshall Collins, brothers of the entombed man. They came up out of the cave entrance and Homer said he had fed his brother.

"On the way up to the cave I

POSTAL PAY BILL PASSES HOUSE TODAY

Washington, Feb. 10. (I.N.S.)—The postal pay increase bill is expected to pass the House this afternoon and be sent to the Senate. Little time will be allowed for consideration of provisions of the measure. No changes will be permitted. Newspaper publishers have condemned the proposed increased mail rates on newspapers and farmer organizations oppose the advance rates on parcel post.

FEAR KLAN PLOT TO STEAL CHURCH

Roused by an alleged attempt on the part of the Ku Klux Klan to seize the Medford Hillside Universalist Church, parishioners of long standing have declared war on the pastor, the Rev. Charles E. Clarke.

The pastor, who is a native of Clarksburg, W. Va., and a comparatively recent arrival, is charged with sponsoring the Klan movement, which is being carried to a successful end by "packing" the members' ranks.

The trustees, of whom Colonel Albert C. Gray, commander of the 43d Infantry, M. N. G., is chairman, are considering methods by which the church may be rid of the incubus.

The story, aside from its modern setting, resembles the ancient tale of the kind-hearted innkeeper, who invited a stated into his inn only to be dispossessed by the object of his benevolence.

The Rev. Mr. Clark, originally a Methodist who was converted to the

SIX TIGERS SIGN UP FOR 1925 CAMPAIGN

Detroit, Feb. 17.—Detroit has the contracts of six baseball players in its strong box and is expecting the rest to arrive most any time. The men under contract are the veterans of the team, headed by Manager Ty Cobb, who is working on a long time agreement. Harry Heilmann was the first of the men to sign, turning in his contract last week.

Johnny Bassler and Larry Woodall, catchers; George Dauss, pitcher, and Lu Blue, first baseman, have also turned in their signed contracts. Blue returned his in person and will remain in Detroit until reporting at Augusta, Ga., about March 1.

MARTIN SIGNED FOR 7 BOUTS, WON'T QUIT

New York, Feb. 11 (A.P.)—Vincent (Pepper) Martin, Brooklyn lightweight, has not quit the ring in spite of the knockout he sustained at the hands of Mike Ballerino, last week, that sent him to the hospital for several days, Martin has signed for several bouts in the near future and hopes to stage a come-back.

2 BOYS KILLED PLAYING "COLLINS IN THE CAVE"

Ventura, Cal., Feb. 10.—Business stopped in this town today while tribute was paid to Kenneth Bastford, twelve, and Thomas Thompson, eleven, Ventura boys, who died while pretending they were "Floyd Collins dying in a Kentucky cave."

A sudden collapse of sand in which the "Kentucky cave" was built buried the two boys and smothered them to death.

cent Columbus Doyel, brother of B. Doyel, who owns the property on which the cave entrance is located.

"I went down in the hole with Columbus Doyel, who directed the way. He stopped at a narrow passage where it was too hard for him to get through and I proceeded farther by worming my way down on my stomach.

"I went down through the passage head first until, without realizing it, I was right on top of Floyd. I had begun calling when about ten feet from it and received only a grunt for an answer.

"Before I realized it I had slipped down the chute. All I could see was Floyd's head covered with an oil cloth, which was wet."

Miller was asked whether at this time he had received any information from persons who had already been in to Collins. He said he had been told that Collins had been fed Saturday evening and also that John Gerald had been digging around the prisoner.

THOUGHT CASE HOPELESS.

"Oh, you and the stone are hurting me," were the first Miller heard from Collins, Miller said. This came when he slipped down the chute onto the prisoner.

He lifted the cover from Collin's face and Collins asked him to put it back to protect him from the fall of dripping water.

Miller was asked to describe conditions where Collins was found.

"There are," said Miller, "no pools of water, but a constant seepage. I was unable to see his feet. I could see as far down as his chest, but could not tell how much of his body was covered below that point.

"A large stone arches over his breast with only about two inches clearance. I put out my hand under the stone over his chest.

"I carried a flashlight but was unable to see beneath this stone. Floyd said he was cold.

"I believe it is colder inside the cave than outside. In addition the seeping water wets anyone who goes in, causing them to feel cold.

"On this, my first trip, I remained near Collins about half an hour.

"I believed the case to be hopeless from what I saw and returned to the surface.

"My next trip was made about 6.30 o'clock that afternoon. Homer Collins went in first. I was second and Lieutenant Robert Burdon, Louisville Fire Department, was third. There were others back of Burdon, but I do not know how many or who they were.

NERVES BADLY SHOT.

"Homer had two sandwiches and I believe some coffee. Homer went down and I heard him talking with Floyd. Floyd called him by name and I could hear Floyd eating the sandwiches.

Floyd's nerves were badly shot and when Homer tried to put on him a harness he had taken in to try to pull him out Floyd begged his brother not to make such an effort for fear his leg might be pulled off.

"Floyd's head was pointed toward the entrance and he seemed to be in a sim-reclining position and slightly on his left side."

Captive 11 Days; Still Alive, New Test Shows

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 10 (I.N.S.).—Radio tests again today brought back the same murmur of life from Floyd Collins in the inner recesses of Sand Cave to the head phones at which a physician listened.

The beats, said by electrical engineers to be respirations transmitted by the microphone, came at the normal speed of health, varying from 20 to 27 a minute.

Once, Dr. William Hazlett of Chicago said, he thought he counted them as high as 32, but this, he said, might be accounted for by other factors along the wire which might give additional pulsation.

This is Floyd Collins' eleventh day of imprisonment—eleven days spent in natural straitjacket, with icy water trickling over his body, without food since last Thursday, and unable to move.

It is this apparent miracle that spurs on digging operations, keeps men working until they drop from exhaustion and holds a nation in suspense.

Collins Still Hopeful, Says Boyhood Pal

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Johnny Gerald, one of the most active of the Collins neighbors in the early efforts to rescue Floyd Collins, and the latter's chum, came to Louisville to give his story and refute "lies that have been told about me either directly or in veiled terms."

"I am not a cave explorer or guide," Gerald says in his statement, copyrighted by the Courier-Journal. "I was never in Mammoth Cave except as a boy many years ago. I am a tobacco buyer.

"On Saturday, January 31, I went to Cave City from Horse Cave and on my way passed Mr. Wood Ford, a neighbor. He asked me if I had heard about Floyd Collins being in the cave.

"When I got to Cave City I learned that they thought they would have him out by Saturday night, so I thought nothing more about it. On Sunday I went to Cave City again to find out about Collins.

"I found they had not got him out.

ANSWERED BY VICTIM.

"Monday morning I went over to Horse Cave to get an air drill, as they told me I would have to drill my way into this rock. I also bought 300 feet of hose in order to make the connections reach down to Collins. I hired a man to take his gasoline engine and drilling equipment over and when we reached Cave City Lieutenant Burdon of the Louisville Fire Department was there.

"When we reached Sand Cave they would not let us go in. Lee Collins, Floyd's father, said he wanted to give Lieutenant Burdon a chance to work. I stayed there all day waiting to give assistance if necessary. I notice Mr. Burdon said I was in charge down there, but I was not.

"I stayed there till some time Monday night and Mr. Burdon and the others tried to pull Floyd out with a rope and harness.

"Mr. Horning of Glasgow went down with a second party to pull on the rope, after the first party below the corkscrew turn. I told Ben Wells, president of Ogden College at Bowling Green, to come back and let me in front.

"Floyd heard me and hollered back: 'That's Johnny Gerald; he's my friend. Let him down there; he'll get me out.'

"I went down about six feet from Floyd, as close as I could get to him. He told me what to do. We moved some loose rock and passed it out and worked where I could wrap Floyd in a quilt.

COLLINS' COURAGE GOOD.

"After I got the rocks out I went down to Floyd with a bottle of milk and fed it to him. Then I went to work moving loose rock and sand from against his back. I asked Floyd all about how he got in and he told me he went in the same way we came down.

"I asked him if he was going in or coming out when he got caught and he said he was coming out. He said he was crawling around on the edge of a pit and just as he turned off from the pit, he kicked a small rock that was in the way of his foot. That was when the other rock fell and caught him. He said he thought this rock would weigh 50 or 60 pounds, but other stuff coming down on top of the rock was holding it.

"'That don't make any difference,' Floyd said. 'I can live here two weeks if you'll just feed me.'

"Dewey Logsdon told me he did not think there was any chance to get to Floyd because of the breakdown.

COLLINS IS AT HOME IN CAVES

Small Hospital Established at Cave

Cave City, Feb. 10. (I.N.S.)—Three hypodermic needles, filled with stimulants, were ready today for Floyd Collins to be uncovered, one contains caffeine, another camphor and oil and the third adrenalin.

A normal salt water solution did will be injected into Collins' veins—if he still be living when found—to restore the filled condition of his arteries.

Everything from a complete set of surgical instruments to a flannel night gown, according to Dr. William Hazlett of Chicago, is included in the outfit of the miniature hospital at the entrance of Sand Cave.

JONES REVEALS PHONE PACT TERMS

fold, being a stock ownership relation the American owning 58 per cent. of the New England—and a contractural relationship based on the so-called license contract under which in return for services the New England company pays 4½ per cent. of its revenues to the American company.

FEATURE UNDER FIRE.

It is this 4½ per cent. contract which is under fire from the opponents of the increases.

President Jones said that at the time the original contract was established in 1883 the American Bell Telephone Company, predecessor of the American Telephone & Telegraph, did not own stock in the New England company, nor were there officers common to both companies.

When the New England company was formed, he said, the American received in stock $4,268,000 for a perpetual license, and about $7,000,000 for telephone property transferred. All later stock, he declared, obtained from the New England by the American was on the same terms as any other stockholders, paying par value in cash.

Up to 1908, the witness testified, payments for contracts and license were carried on the books of the New England Company as part of its assets. In that year the item for contracts and licenses was written off, as the Massachusetts Highway Commission had made an appraisal and determined the value of its property was more than its book cost.

WHAT THEY FURNISH.

He said the contract provides that the American company shall furnish all transmitters, receivers and induction coils to the New England, together with expert advice, legal and technical. This he declared relieved the New England of the investment of many millions, and is regarded it as a good contract.

The New England company has the right to use all patents of the American without royalty charges, and with a guarantee of protection against suits for infringement. The American company also conducts all of the research work, and renders financial services, including loans of money at 6 per cent.

FIRE MEDAL

awards will be made at six month intervals.

Mayor Curley's letter approving the plan for rewarding and encouraging the city's firemen follows:

The Boston Evening American's plan of presenting a diamond medal semi-annually to the most meritorious man in the Boston Fire Department, based on his work and record, and the added gift of $100 to his wife, is a public-spirited action that should meet general public approval.

"This plan is certain to stimulate a generous rivalry among the members of the department and cannot help having a helpful effect upon the individual conduct of the men, and the general esprit de corps.

In its best sense the firefighters of our cities are the heroes of peace, constantly facing danger and death as the commonplaces of their work, and as a rule the only reward they receive is a sentence of praise in a department report or a line in a newspaper.

"I congratulate the Boston Evening American on its happy thought, on its plan to recognize merit, manhood and bravery; and while I believe it will work out for both the department and public good, I hope to see the selection of the man and the presentation of the prize made something of an occasion, for the firefighters' light is too often hidden under a bushel.

"Valor in military fields has been recognized by medals, crosses and special impressive functions. No soldier faces dangers and hazards more cruel and relentless than the fireman, and I should like to see him and his deeds receive a wider and more public recognition.

(Signed) "JAMES M. CURLEY, "Mayor."

PARISH WARS ON PASTOR AS KLAN PLOTTER

Universalist doctrine, went to the Medford Hillside church three years ago from Alabama.

For two years there was no dissatisfaction, but last Spring a Klan meeting was held in the vestry without the knowledge of the trustees. The trustees, aside from Colonel Gray, are Frederick W. Ford, Lawrence Brown, treasurer; W. H. Brown, clerk; Hartley Johnson and Philip Johnson.

Frederick W. Sleeper resigned as a member of the board following the Spring meeting, as a protest against the new developments. The others were unable to find anything definite on which to take action until Fall.

Then a meeting was called, to be held in the community hall adjoining the church, and billed as a patriotic meeting. Some of the older parishioners and trustees who attended were amazed when two score men, garbed in Klan regalia, entered the hall and took their seats. The speaker was former Senator Cole of Rhode Island.

The trustees immediately called a meeting, censured the pastor, read a rebuke into the minutes, and ordered the incident be not repeated.

Just before this so-called patriotic meeting electric lights in church and hall were found broken and members of the Klan hinted the damage was done by avenists of the knights of hood and robe. Police investigation is said to have revealed that the damage was caused by those who called the meeting in an attempt to stir up sympathy.

RECRUITS NEW MEMBERS.

Although the Rev. Mr. Clarke had apparently concurred in the action of the trustees, it was learned that he was secretly active in the affairs of the Klan. Last Summer he is said to have traveled through the country speaking at Klan meetings.

In the Fall trustees began to notice that the pastor was bringing in new members to the parish by the score. Eventually they numbered about 150, practically equaling the strength of the original members of the parish.

Then, several weeks ago, one of the new members presented a resolution, reading: "Resolved, that the pastor shall be authorized to use church property for any purpose and in any manner he shall direct." Trustees Ford declared the resolution was against the constitution of the church, and if passed the trustees would ignore it. The resolution was then amended to read: "For any religious purpose."

The new parishioners, on the following Sunday, held a meeting in the church vestry, to which regular members were not invited and the trustees not informed.

TRUSTEE THREATENED.

Yesterday the trustees attended another secret meeting, at which the Rev. Mr. Clarke was present, together with another person who described himself as a minister.

After listening to harangues in the best Klan style the trustees refused to endorse the secret order when the meeting was called on to do so by the visiting clergyman. They were then asked to leave, but on refusing were asked to go to the platform. As Trustee Ford started for the front of the room threats and insults were hurled at him, the so-called minister being most vituperative.

Finally he shook his finger under Ford's nose, and while the Rev. Clarke stood calmly by, shouted: "Some morning you'll find something on your doorstep."

Other "show him out" were heard, and eventually the trustees left the church which they had assisted in founding.

Gloria Swanson Is Officer of French Academy

Paris, Feb. 10 (Universal Cable).—The Marquise de la Falaise de la Coudraie, formerly Gloria Swanson, had a new honor conferred upon her when Colonel De Lambre, representing the French government, decorated her as an "officer of the Academy."

Outside the Legion of Honor, it is the highest honor possible to be bestowed upon foreigners. The decoration was bestowed for "services rendered," but no mention was made as to whether this meant Gloria's work in the films or her marriage to a French nobleman.

BOY, DESERTED, CARES FOR BROTHER AND SISTER

New York, Feb. 10.—John Naumo, seven, bravely played father to his baby sister and his five-year-old brother after their parents disappeared two days ago. He was discovered by Patrolman Sweeney in their basement home on the lower East Side feeding sugar water to the three-months'-old girl. In a cot beside the child lay his brother Paul.

Bellevue Hospital attaches, after taking up a collection for the two boys, turned them over to the Children's Society. The sister was put in the Bellevue's foundling ward.

GERMANY MUST PAY ALL, SAYS FRENCH PRESS

Paris, Feb. 10 (I.N.S.).—Money with which to pay France's debt not only to Great Britain but to the United States, must come from Germany, French newspapers were almost unanimous today in declaring. The reaction followed a close study of Great Britain's note to France that France should obtain from its natural resources the money to pay its debt to London.

INTIMIDATING NAVY OFFICERS IS DENIED

Mitchell's Charge Scouted by House Committee In Its Resolution

Washington, Feb. 10.—President Coolidge is not in favor of a unified air service, such as is advocated by Brigadier-General William Mitchell and a considerable block in Congress, it was announced at the White House this afternoon.

The President, nevertheless, considers aircraft to be largely in an experimental stage, and not an arm of the government yet sufficiently important to warrrant a unified service.

Washington, Feb. 10 (I.N.S.).—The House Naval Affairs Committee came today to the defence of Secretary Wilbur and officers of the navy who have been criticized by Brigadier-General William Mitchell in his attacks on the manner in which military aeronautics have been managed.

A resolution was adopted by the committee expressing confidence in the Bureau of Aeronautics, but did not mention Mitchell by name.

Mitchell's name was omitted because Representative McClintic of Oklahoma decided the "committee ought to attend to its own business and not criticise any other department of the government."

The resolution, offered by the committee chairman, Representative Butler of Pennsylvania, denied General Mitchell's charge that naval officers had been "intimidated" by their superiors because of their testimony on naval matters.

200 WIN FIRE FIGHT WITH BUCKETS

"Mystery Shoplifter" Is Girl From Tennessee

IDENTITY REVEALED IN COURT

"Helen Gilmore" Is Ethel Clement, Member of Prominent Memphis Family

"Helen Gilmore," mysterious shoplifter, who in January was sent to the Psychopathic Hospital, was revealed in Municipal Court today as Ethel Clement, member of a prominent family in Memphis, Tenn.

The probation authorities were notified that a letter containing the young woman's history was on its way here, and pending its arrival Judge Parmenter continued the case for one week.

The girl was arrested by Special Officers Lynch and Bresnahan for stealing a dress from a department store. She had been in court several times and following he commitment to the Psychopathic Hospital was pronounced insane.

BOY HURLED IN AIR BADLY HURT

Photo-diagram shows how 17-year-old Peter Palermo, of No. 16 Charger street, Revere, broke up a fight between his 11-year-old brother Tony and Dominic Rindone, the same age, of No. 304 Malden street, also in Revere, by hurling Dominic over a four-foot fence. Lower insert shows Dominic, whose back was partly paralyzed by the fall. At top, the Palermo brothers, Tony (left) and "Strong Arm" Peter.

200 WIN FIRE BATTLE WITH BUCKETS

Middleton, Feb. 10.—Two hundred men, women and children turned out early today, manned old-fashioned hose reels, formed bucket brigades and saved the town from destruction by fire.

The volunteers, comprising in number half the town's population, were unable to save the Abbott Block in Middleton square and this building, the largest in the town, was destroyed with a loss of $15,000.

The fire was discovered in the Abbott block, occupied by the general store of Elmer Abbott, about 1 a. m.

The town is without a fire department, but hose reels almost 100 years old are kept in an old stable, together with fire buckets. The entire town was called out by the ringing of bells, and the townsmen quickly manned the hand reels and pumps, while the boys and women assisted the men in forming bucket brigades.

The Abbott block, a two-and-one-half story structure, stocked to the roof with provisions of all kinds, burned fiercely. The block is located in the heart of the town, but a complete absence of wind aided the volunteer fire fighters and the surrounding properties were saved.

PROUD OF EFFORTS.

It was after daylight when the last of the weary volunteers returned to their homes.

Ordinarily the town summons help from surrounding towns when a fire occurs. The citizens are proud of their efforts as volunteer fire fighters and a permanent organization will likely be effected as a result of today's showing.

ANGRY FIREMEN LOCK UP NEW APPARATUS

Provincetown, Feb. 10.—Peeved at the parsimony of the Provincetown voters, the members of Hook and Ladder Rescue No. 1 have taken their new motor fire truck from the fire station, locked it up in a stable and the town can burn to the ground as far as the Rescue boys are concerned.

"Provincetown may still be in the horse-drawn age but we're motor-driven fireman," declared one angry, red-shirted fire fighter today.

"The next thing they'll want to go back to the whale oil lamps to light the town."

The firemen and the city in general are at odds—all because the voters decided, overwhelmingly, not to pay for the auto chassis for the fire truck of Hook and Ladder Rescue No. 1.

The firemen, some months ago, decided that Provincetown should keep its fire department as smarty as other Massachusetts communities.

The chassis and engine of a used car were bought and the firemen devoted their spare time to mounting the truck on the auto chassis. Then the job was painted a brilliant red and the machine was proudly driven through the streets by the firemen.

When the matter of paying for the chassis was put up to the voters, however, there was a 10 to 1 "no" vote recorded.

Angered beyond measure, the firemen have taken the motorized fire truck from the town fire station and have stored it in a barn where the firemen declare it will remain until the citizens change their mind.

PHOTOS CHALLENGE KANSAS CLAIM

Lara Helen Taylor, pictured above, adds proof that New England has reason to insist that President Coolidge was off his guard when he voiced the opinion that Kansas has the most beautiful women. Miss Taylor's photograph was taken in the White Studio, Boston.

BARES $15,000 ATLANTA JAIL PLOT BRIBE

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 10 (A.P.)—Samuel Rothberg, Atlanta merchant, testified today in the trial of A. Sartain and L. J. Fletcher, former officials of the Atlanta Penitentiary, and Laurence H. Riehl of Columbus, O., that he told Fletcher in 1924 that if he would take care of Fred Haar, Sr., of Savannah, Ga., convicted of violating the prohibition law, he would be given $15,000.

Fletcher, Sartain and Riehl are charged with conspiracy and bribery as a result of a Federal investigation of conditions at the prison.

As a result of a conference with Mr. and Mrs. Marshall McKenzie, formerly of Atlanta, but now of Savannah, Rothberg said he first told Fletcher, deputy warden at the prison, that he was sure Willie Haar, the elder Haar's son, would appreciate any courtesy shown his father. The conversation with Fletcher, he testified, occurred in December, 1924.

Later Rothberg said he again saw Fletcher and told him that if he would take care of the elder Haar "Willie Haar would see to it that the deputy warden would be cared for in the sum of $15,000."

"What did Fletcher say," District Attorney C. W. Hager asked.

"He said that would be all right."

In March, 1924, Rothberg again made another visit to the prison, he said, and told Fletcher Willie Haar was in town.

"Fletcher told me not to take any money, that it was all off," Rothberg testified.

AMERICAN TOURISTS ON STEAMER SAFE

London, Feb. 10.—Announcement that the American steamer President Harrison, bearing hundreds of American tourists homeward from the Mediterranean, was proceeding according to schedule, and that she had at no time experienced difficulty, was made today by Lloyd's in the form of a statement from the agents here of the Robert Dollar Company, owners of the vessel. The statement said: "The President Harrison arrived at Genoa at scheduled time and sailed for Marseilles at scheduled time. No difficulties were experienced of any kind, and no S. O. S. signals were sent out."

BRITONS JAILED IN NAVY SECRETS THEFT

London, Feb. 10 (I.N.S.).—Following a trial at which most of the evidence was kept secret, Joseph Ofeary today was sentenced to eighteen months imprisonment and Matthew McGough to fifteen months imprisonment for violation of the official secrets act. The men were arrested following an investigation of reports that naval secrets were being stolen from naval headquarters.

PINCHOT OPENS WAR AGAINST HOOTCH

Harrisburg, Feb. 10.—Philadelphia is the principal centre in the United States for the manufacture of illegal drink from denatured alcohol and Pittsburgh is a centre for illegal beer, Governor Pinchot told the members of the General Assembly today, in a message asking enactment of a "united dry bill" for regulation of distilleries and breweries.

If the bill is passed, the Governor declared, "the sources of illegal drink in Pennsylvania will be dried up." If it is defeated, he predicted flagrant violations of the law will continue and "the law-breakers will, by its defeat, be encouraged to still greater lawlessness."

"The enemies of law enforcement will try to make it appear that to defeat this bill will bring nearer the day of light wine and beer," he said. "Even if such a day could ever come, it would do nothing of the sort. If modification of the Volstead Act is ever to be possible this much is clear. It can never even be considered until the law is fully enforced.

"This is a question of stopping the flood of poison drink poured out over this State and a flood of crime, misfortune, disease and death which ruins and kills our own people by the thousand, and flows in an evil stream from Pennsylvania into other States as well."

The Governor declared that in the two years ending June 30, 1923, the amount of specially-denatured alcohol produced in Philadelphia "increased from less than 800,000 gallons to more than 5,000,000 gallons."

THREE BOYS ARE HELD IN 8 QUINCY BREAKS

Three fourteen-year-old boys were held in $100 bail each when arraigned in Quincy today charged with breaking and entering eight places during the past week. Although loot valued at only about $150 was obtained, considerable damage was done.

The places entered were the Ginter Company store, United Army store, Pill Brothers hardware store, Quincy Point branch of the Public Library, Melville Market, Government School, Atlantic & Pacific store and a dry goods store. The three and called for Marseilles at scheduled time. No difficulties were experienced of any kind, and no S. O. S. signals were sent out."

MOVE TO DOUBLE ALCOHOL OF BEER IN ONTARIO

Toronto, Feb. 10.—The government announced at the opening of the Ontario Legislature today that an amendment to tht temperance act would be introduced which, in the opinion of chemists, would double the alcoholin content of Ontario's beer. The speech from the throne said it was proposed to re-define an intoxicating liquor as a beverage containing 2¼ per cent. of alcohol by volume. The present temperance act limits the alcoholic content to 2½ per cent. by proof.

Vocal Chords Not Needed for Voice

Paris, Feb. 10.—The vocal cords have nothing to do with the production of the voice, according to Henri Froward, preparator at the Sorbonne, the results of whose researches into the subject were read to the Academy of Sciences.

Sound, Professor Froward declares, is caused in the throat, not by vibrations of the vocal cords, but by vibrations of the air in the cavities beside them; consequently the mechanism of the human voice, he holds, is comparable to the ocarina, rather than to the accordeon.

S.P.C.A. MAN, 77 IS SUICIDE AT SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, Feb. 10.—Locked into his private office, Dexter A. Atkins, 77-year-old agent for the S. P. C. A., committed suicide today by shooting himself through the head.

He was still breathing when discovered by S. Frank Goodwin, a fellow agent. He was sent to Wilson Memorial Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Mr. Atkins, who lived with his wife at No. 31 Maple road, Longmeadow, had been brooding over failing health for some time. His wife and Goodwin said the police the man would sit for hours, gazing at nothing, his mind apparently a blank.

Today on arriving at the society's headquarters in the Court Square Theatre Building here, Atkins locked the door of his private office. Then standing before a mirror over a washstand he fired a shot into his head with a 38-calibre revolver.

Some time later Goodwin arrived, and finding the door locked forced it.

NILES KLAN ROOTER GUILTY OF ASSAULT

Warren, O., Feb. 10.—Rex Dunn of Niles, first of ninety persons indicted in connection with rioting at Niles November 1 between klansmen and anti-klansmen to go on trial, was found guilty of assault.

Dunn was charged with shooting to kill or wound Frank McDermott, son of former State Senator John McDermott, prominent anti-klan leader, in the first skirmish of the disorders.

COMMITTEE OPPOSES IMPEACHING JUDGE

Washington, Feb. 10.—The House Judiciary Committee today approved a report of a sub-committee recommending against impeachment of Federal Judge Baker of the northern West Virginia district. Authority will be sought by the committee to make a sweeping investigation of charges filed Federal Judge Englieh of the Eastern Illinois district

DYING BOY BEGS FOR FATHER TO RETURN

Portland, Me., Feb. 10.—After lying in a bed for the past three years suffering from an incurable disease and painful illness and knowing he has but a few days to live, Lester Roberts, eighteen years old, of Sawyer street, this city, says he would be happy if his father, Harry Roberts, whom he has not seen for twelve years, would return to him before death ends his suffering.

HIS DYING PLEA.

"If dad would only come to me before I die I know that death would not be half as bad as it seems. I have been hoping, dreaming, even believing that he would come and ever now something tells me he will be with me at the end."

This is the only statement the boy has made for a week.

Even the boy's mother, who divorced his father and has since remarried a prosperous South Portland interior decorator, has made many attempts to locate her former husband so that the boy will be happy when he dies.

When the boy was told he would die he pleaded with his aunt, Miss Alba Plummer, a half sister of his father, to go to Boston and request the aid of the Boston Evening American in the search.

HOW COUPLE PARTED.

It was a family argument that caused the break between the boy's father and mother, an argument that seemed at the time to be trivial, but which resulted in the father leaving home. When he went to his mother for sympathy she took the part of her daughter-in-law and this so angered Roberts that he departed and never returned.

MUSIC FIRMS OPPOSE NEW COPYRIGHT BILL

Washington, Feb. 10.—Representatives of musical reproducing concerns and motion pictures appeared before the House Patents Committee today to oppose the copyright bill of Representative Perkins, Republican, New Jersey. The measure would allow the United States to enter the Berne International Copyright Union, bring the 1909 copyright law down to date and extend the length of a copyright. It was contended that it would open the door wide to fraud by withholding protection of genuine copyrights and invite fake ones.

REAR ADMIRAL HAWLEY, 79, DIES AT CAPITOL

Washington, Feb. 10.—Rear Admiral John Mitchell Hawley, retired, died here late yesterday aged seventy-nine. He was a native of Massachusetts and had served in many commands extending from the Civil War period. He commanded the U. S. S. Brooklyn when that vessel brought the body of John Paul Jones to this country for entombment at Annapolis.

PULPWOOD R. R. RATE PETITIONS DISMISSED

Augusta, Me., Feb. 10.—Chief Justice Leslie C. Cornish of the Maine Supreme Court dismissed two petitions for writs of mandamus brought by the Maine Central Railroad Company and The Portland Terminal Company against Charles E. Gurney, individually and as chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, and Charles E. Gurney, Herbert W. Trafton and Albert Greenlaw, members of the Public Utilities Commission, in the pulpwood rates case.

GENEVA PROTOCOL TABLED BY BRITAIN

London, Feb. 10.—Great Britain is practically tabling the Geneva protocol. Austin Chamberlin, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, will tell the League Council in March that Britain will propose amendments to the protocol which are so extensive in scope that he believes they should be laid before the assembly of the League of Nations, which meets in September.

PUTS $2,300 IN BANK, MAN THEN KILLS SELF

Washington, Feb. 10.—John Flaherty, a member of the New York police force, killed himself early today in a Second street rooming house not long after he had deposited $2,300 in cash in a local bank.

Flaherty shot himself with his service revolver, according to police.

He left several notes, one of which was addressed to James Flaherty, said to be a brother, in which he said he was "tired of living."

WIFE ADMITS TAKING OTHER MAN'S GIFTS

Mrs. Patriquin, Seeking Support, Also Accepted a Ticket for Boat Trip

Under cross-examination at the trial of her separate maintenance suit in Middlesex Probate Court today Mrs. Florence Patriquin admitted receiving gifts and letters and a roundtrip ticket to St. John, N. B., from a man not her husband.

Wilbur H. Patriquin, the husband, is contesting the suit.

Mrs. Patriquin told the court her husband deserted her when they were ordered to vacate their home at No. 156 Sycamore street, Waverly. He has since resided in Roxbury and she has made several attempts to persuade him to re-establish a home, she said.

The examination brought admissions that she went on a number of week-end trips, but always with her husband's knowledge, she insisted.

According to testimony, the Patriquins were married in 1921 and separated in 1924. Mrs. Patriquin testified she was forced to work to buy her clothes and help support their Waverly home.

Regarding the St. John trip Mrs. Patriquin said she went with a young woman, Tini McLeod, on a boat to New Brunswick, and that during a three-hour stay in St. John she was with another young woman, Mabel Sterrett.

GIRLS AT 'HIGH JINKS' HELD IN CITY HALL

Open Probe Into Gay Revels Staged by Officials in Atlantic City

Atlantic City, N. J., Feb. 10—Alleged high jinks in the electric bureau at City Hall, including parties which are reported to have lasted until early in the morning and during which liquor is said to have flowed freely, are being made the object of an investigation today by Director of Public Safety W. S. Cuthbert.

Some twelve young women, together with two or three men, including Frank Shinnen, city electrician, were summoned to the office of Director Cuthbert and questioned.

SECOND ARREST NEAR IN COLLEGE POISONING

Columbus, O., Feb. 10—Arrest of another Ohio State University student in connection with the poisoning of two students was forecast today by Prosecutor Chester. He said evidence had been found against a student who previously had testified before the investigators. Louis Fish, seventeen, of Canton, has already been taken into custody. Police say he has admitted given supposed quinine capsules to David I. Puskin, a student who later died of poisoning. Fish said he gave Puskin the capsules as an "act of kindness."

She Flirted with her Father

She needed glasses, didn't know it, and the handsome gentleman across the aisle might be lonesome.

So she winked. He smiled.

She winked again. He frowned.

Next day she came to us, had her eyes examined free—paid $1.00 down and $1.00 a week for her glasses — and committed no more tactical blunders.

Spain's Famous Painter, Zuloaga, Today's Social Lion in Boston

Artist Is Guest at Luncheon Given by Governor and Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller at Beacon Street Home

By Betty Alden

IGNACIO ZULOAGA IS THE lion taking supreme place in today's and tomorrow's social annals. He is in town for a short stay, to be informally entertained and to put in an appearance, this afternoon at the Vose Galleries.

EVERYONE who follows the arts knows, of course, of his fame as a painter. They also know that many of his works are now hung in the Vose Galleries, and his presence in town is in connection with today's private view there.

FESTIVITIES given in honor of the Spanish personage are quite informal, commencing with the luncheon Mrs. Fuller and his Excellency the Governor are giving at their Beacon street home this noon.

LATER THERE is a reception—entirely informal in character—at the Vose Galleries, with Mesdames Nathaniel Thayer, Bayard Thayer, T. Jefferson Coolidge, Edward Jackson Holmes, I. Tucker Burr, John B. Potter and Christian Herter doing the honors of the line.

WEDNESDAY the exhibition is open to the public generally, and I believe that Zuloaga will grace the galleries with his presence on that day also.

SURELY SOCIAL and artistic Boston is supremely fortunate with two such auspicious events as the Fenway Court opening and the Zuloaga exhibition shedding refulgence almost coincidentally.

RARE treats both. And just here it is not amiss to mention in retrospect the painting of the Spanish dancer, John Singer Sargent's "El Jaleo" hung in the Spanish Cloister at the Court. A work which brought him fame unending.

TO MANY it was an outstanding feature in the feast of art set before the Smart Set for Sunday's opening of the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum.

IT CARRIED an atmosphere at once indescribably mystical and appealing, as one viewed the picture itself and then saw it reflected in its entirety in the enormous mirror at the other end of the Cloister.

THERE WAS no one in the smart throng at the Museum on Sunday more royally welcomed than the venerable Mrs. Henry L. Higginson who made one of her very infrequent appearances on that day.

Miss Edith Bonsal as she appears on the links of the smart and exclusive Everglades Golf Club at Palm Beach. She is the daughter of the W. Roscoe Bonsals of Ventford Hall, a showplace in the notable Lenox colony of the Berkshire Hills.

SHE HELD a little court, greeted both for her own sake and in remembrance of her late husband, Colonel Henry L. Higginson, whose memory is very green in the hearts of countless Bostonians.

NAMES OF Russian matrons of high degree are conspicuous in the patroness list for the Russian Cabaret Supper Dance on the 17th at No. 46 Beacon street. There are, no less, the Princess Sophia Serge'na Toumanova, the Baroness Eugenia Roberg-Borgash, Tatiana Constantinova Pinakova and Natalia Coriatantinova Koussevitskaya among others.

OF BOSTON'S ELECT there are listed the names of Mesdames Roger Warner, Jasper Whiting Charles R. Codman, Allen Curtis, Moorhead Patterson, Henry H. Sprague, John W. Bartol and Augustus Hemenway, to recount but a few.

BUD ACTIVITIES resume their place in the social scheme with the dance at the Somerset Hotel Mrs. A. C. D. Hobson gives this evening for her debutante daughter, Katherine Hobson. Outstanding in the dinners preceding the dance are those of Mrs. Hobson and Mrs. L. Carteret Fenno.

MRS. HOBSON'S is for the ushers and Mrs. Fenno entertains in honor of Juliet Greene, daughter of Mrs. Bertram W. B. Greene.

JULIET GREENE and Mrs. Fenno's daughter, Elizabeth Fenno, were school mates at Miss May's and each is a conspicuous figure in the debutante world, although Miss Greene's entrance therein was delayed—much to her friends regret.

HOWEVER, she is again in the best of health, and as sweet and charming a bud as is to be found in many a season.

chauffeur. And to hire one is no insult to the good old coachman.

Battleships, and regiments of soldiers, crawling like ants over the ground, are out of date. What the nation wants is fighting air machines.

PETER GARRETSON, of Paterson, celebrated his ninetieth birthday on Sunday. Sixty years ago the life insurance people didn't want to insure him. He was "a poor risk." And the insurance people told him so.

Thereupon Mr. Garretson did MORE THINKING and LESS EATING, gave up the insurance idea and lived to ninety.

As Senator Copeland, who is also a doctor, says: "Half of what you eat keeps you alive, the other half keeps doctors alive."

The figures might be changed thusly: Forty per cent. of what you eat keeps you alive, 50 per cent. keeps the doctor alive, and 10 per cent. keeps the undertaker going.

FASHION CAN DO what other things can't do. For instance, the fashion in short skirts has made fashionable restaurants and night dancing resorts in London cut down the heights of tables and chairs. It is impossible for women with skirts up to their knees to sit gracefully, not to say modestly, at the regulation high table. So the legs are cut off.

SOLOIST THOMAS BIG SYMPHONY SUCCESS

The appearance of John Charles Thomas as soloist with the Symphony Orchestra at their concert last night was the occasion of much applause. He has a large, round voice of very good quality and sang airs of Verdi and Massenet.

The orchestral portion of the program opened with Glinka's lively overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla." Mr. Koussevitzky's beautiful rendition of Stravinsky's "Fire-Bird" followed. A dramatic interpretation of Beethoven's Seventh Symphony, music which wears better and better with age, closed the concert.

Russian Matrons of High Degree on the List of Patronesses for Cabaret Supper Dance on Feb. 17

MRS. NATHANIEL EMMONS of Hingham is a well known Bostonian who will go to Washington later on for the inaugural ceremonials and for a round of entertaining in her particular honor.

SHE GOES to Washington by way of New York, where she plans to tarry for a round of theatres and the shops.

I SAW Mrs. Emmons at the Opera House for the last matinee, looking extremely chic in a smart chapeau of the "casque" variety, her wrap and frock repeating with deft touches the gay cardinal red of the hat.

Simple Home Mixture Darkens Gray Hair

Cincinnati Barber Tells How to Use Barbo Compound

Any man or woman can easily look twenty years younger by simply darkening their gray, faded, or streaky hair. This is now easy, to accomplish with a recipe given by a well known Cincinnati barber.

Simply take a half-pint of water add one ounce of bay rum, one ounce of glycerine and a small box of Barbo Compound. Shake and it is ready to use. These ingredients can be bought at drug stores at trifling cost.

Applied to the hair twice weekly this delightful mixture quickly gives the desired shade. It is easy to use, is not sticky or greasy, will not color the scalp and does not rub off.

WOMAN DROPS LAMP, DIES IN FIRE

Newton, N. H., Jan. 10.—Mrs. Augusta Gould, eighty-seven years old, was burned to death in her Main street cottage when she fell with a lighted lamp in her hand. The burning oil ignited the aged woman's clothes and set fire to the house.

Peter Walls, driver of a Pikistow, N. H., bakery wagon, discovered the blaze and tolled the bell of the Methodist Church, across the street, to summon assistance.

A bucket brigade was quickly formed and the building, except an ell, where the charred remains of Mrs. Gould were found, was saved.

Hall has left the hospital for his home but it will be several weeks befre he is able to be about again.

DR. LEVIN WILL GIVE TALK ON ZIONISM

Dr. Schmarya, probably the greatest living Jew in the world today, will come to Boston tomorrow under the auspices of the New England Zionist Region to make a stirring appeal for the cause in Tremont Temple.

One of the few Jews who served in the Russian Duma, Dr. Levin is an author-publicist. He is leader of the world's movement for Zionism and, as such, his tour through this country is eagerly anticipated. His visit to this city next week will be his only one in New England. As a result a capacity house is expected to greet his appearance.

Born in Russia in 1867, Dr. Levin was educated in Germany, where he received a degree of Doctor of Philosophy. He paid a visit to Boston three years ago.

Intelligence tests striking a popular note and broad appeal.

Thus have the Boston Evening American Weekly Crossword Puzzle Contests, now in their fourth series, been described by Annis S. Gage, of Somerville, winner of one of last week's prizes, who wrote:

"These puzzles may be well used as 'intelligence tests,' for indeed they test the depth, breadth and keenness of one's intelligence.

"The feeling of satisfaction that follows 'something attempted, something done,' should be his or hers, as one arises from the completed task."

Another purse of $250 will be awaiting the winners this Saturday.

Six puzzles and a chance to cash in on your efforts. An even $100 for the person coming in first, $50 for second place and $25 for the runner-up. And then a stack of $5 bills for the next fifteen in line.

Work six puzzles and shoot them along to the Weekly Puzzle Editor before the close of business Wednesday. The only other task is writing a letter of not more than 200 words on what constitutes an ideal crossword puzzle.

Don't miss this grand free-for-all wordfest and the stake of $250 waiting at the finishing line.

End That Cold —Tonight

With Hot Lemonade

WHEN you're sneezing —when you're chilly —that's the time to stop a cold.

Take a good, old-fashioned hot lemonade—as hot as you can stand it. Then a hot bath and go to bed, with plenty of warm covers. You will note the difference in the morning.

The effectiveness of hot lemonade in the prevention or treatment of a cold is due to more than its heat.

Thousands used this effective and easy method during the influenza epidemics. You, too, will profit by doing likewise if a cold impends.

Mothers now keep lemons always in the house for such emergencies. Children should have this healthful drink. If their feet are wet after playing outdoors give them a hot lemonade. It's good insurance against colds and more serious results.

It takes but a few minutes to prepare it. Just squeeze the juice of a lemon in glass or cup of hot water. Add sugar if you wish. The time to act is when you first suspect the cold. Do this tonight if you feel chilly.

California lemons make the best lemonade. They are practically seedless, tart and heavy with acid juice. Buy them at any first-class store. Try the "hot lemonade way" tonight.

GRIFFITH GOES BIG IN FARCE AT FENWAY

His Acting in "Forty Winks" Makes Picture Well Worth Seeing

The way to find out what a woman values most is to set a fire. She will do the rest.

In "Forty Winks," now showing at the Fenway, that's the way Lord Chumley discovers where the villainess has hidden the all-important papers.

This is a speedy little comedy featuring that delightfully blase comedian Raymond Griffith. The burden of the tale is the loss of important naval papers by Lieutenant Hugh Butterworth.

Unless Butterworth recovers them he will be cashiered. The villain in the person of Gasper Le Sage (Cyril Chadwick) announces that he will recover the documents if Eleanor Butterworth (Viola Dana) will get rid of her fiance, Lord Chumley (Raymond Griffith) and marry him instead.

To save her brother she consents, but Chumley does the Sherlock Holmes and all ends well.

Every variety of laugh is crammed into the snappy little farce which contains some novel comedy ideas as well as the usual hokum. A bewildering array of doors, a merry chase through them all by Chumley and the detectives—the amazing way in which Chumley conducts a fight with a burglar and emerges without a mark on his topper, his adventures with a too friendly pup and finally his recovery of the papers form a delicious melange. This intriguing bit of nonsense will not strain anyone's brain, but it is good for a lot of hearty laughs and provides corking entertainment.

Lloyd Del Castillo offers "The Little Old Clock on the Mantel" straight, and then rehashes it with some of the old favorites in an ingenious original medley.

The usual Fenway features complete the week's bill.

BRIGHT COMEDY MARKS SHOW AT MAJESTIC

"I'll Say She Is" Proves Clever and Tuneful With Marx Brothers as Stars

The first-nighters must be still chuckling over the buffoonery of the Marx Brothers in "I'll Say She Is" at the Majestic.

And by the same token this delightful quartet of comedians must be congratulating themselves over bringing their musical comedy revue back to Boston again after two years, playing to a full house and sending the audience away humming "Only You," one of the tuneful melodies of the show.

Most intriguing is the jazzy title of this show and it lives up to all its promise.

FOUR STARS SHINE.

"I'll Say She Is" does not pretend to the subtle cleverness of some of the revues with which Hub theatergoers have been regaled this season. It gets its laughs from the wide range of simple comedy furnished by its four stars.

Julius Marx has few equals in burlesque, and Arthur, with his dreamy pantomime is a veritable Chaplin. And when the latter suddenly ascends from the ridiculous to the sublime with a surprising interpolation of real artistry in her singing and dancing solos, but she surely does win you by her charm.

Taken by and large, "I'll Say She Is"—and one forgets the significance of the title in the storms of mirth—ought to find a home in the Hub for many moons to come.

MABEL FORD & COMPANY WIN KEITH'S HONORS

Mabel Ford, dancing star with talented musicians and dancers, and Gordon Dooley and Martha Morton, with new songs and dances, share the honors at Keith's this week. Miss Ford and company received a wonderful ovation. She is assisted by Milton Spielman and his Golden Gate Syncopators.

Celeella (Cissie) Loftus, billed as the "world's greatest mimic," brings with her a new list of impressions.

Jack Osterman is back again with his "Visit to Hollywood," and a lot of other laughs. The Takawa "Jiu-jiu-pson's superlative equilibrists," give the audience a thrill.

TWO HOURS OF LAUGHS AT WILBUR

"Begger on Horseback" Is Clever Satire on Modern Business Methods

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

It is always good form to lift a satirical eyebrow and wink jokingly at the solemn routine of organized business. The well known writing twins—George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly—have done the thing before, but in "Beggar on Horseback" at the Wilbur they have fairly outshone themselves in poking fun at the formalities of life as you meet them in the temal quest for daily bread.

A fantastic comedy, framed around the familiar sleeping hero and his dream, "Beggar on Horseback" tossed a terrific broadside into the modern efficiency methods that are so graphically exploited on the advertising pages of the magazines. Kaufman and Connelly polished off the efficiency man with neatness and dispatch—skinned him alive and pinned the carcass on the wall. They stripped him clean, laughed at him and with him, they punctured his vanities, ridiculed his mental processes and finally turned the evening into a carnival of hilarious joy.

NOVEL PLAY.

And having finished with business efficiency they turned to art and to civic conventions. And here, too, was completed a thorough job. Novelty being the essence of good drama, "Beggar on Horseback" may hold its head high and proceed merrily on its way. At first glance the play took the form of highly specialized burlesque, with a dash of Cohanesque musical comedy flavor. Dancing reporters, frisking butlers, syncopated jurymen and other contributing ensembles were like pages from the George M. Cohan workshop.

It was always amusing, with laugh packed upon laugh, and quite understandable after you had caught up with the spirit back of the comedy. Nevertheless it was a mixture—a bewildering mixture of odds and ends. It moved as dreams move, flitting here and there, bringing queer people and queerer scenes into view. The characters romped all over the house—on the stage and in the auditorium—and surprises flowed in a steady stream.

COMEDY WELL CAST.

Call it a play or a fantasy, a conglomeration of swiftly changing, fleeting scenes, or a pageant of weird things that bloom in the dark; label it to your own fashion, if you prefer, and you'll not fall far short of the mark.

In personnel, "Beggar on Horseback" outstepped company dimensions into regimental or divisional numbers. Roland Young, as the dreamer who saw strange things, carried the heavy burden of the performance to everybody's satisfaction. Osgood Perkins added to the gaiety of the evening in a droll way and George W. Barbier proved an unrefined joy as the head of the widget trust. Kay Johnson, Spring Byington and Ann Carpenger were important links in the colorful sweep of events that made up the story. For a touch of the aesthetic, Ivan Kronoff and Karolya Savari brought forth a pantomine called "A Kiss in Xanadu." Even this had its moments of satire.

Coming Events

"Simon Called Peter" will move into the Plymouth next Monday.

Marilyn Miller in "Peter Pan" will start a two weeks' engagement at the Tremont next Monday.

"The Swan" will be the next attraction at the Hollis, starting next Monday.

"Expressing Willie" will be given at the St. James next week.

Frances Howard in "The Swan" (film) will be the attraction at the Fenway beginning Saturday.

Eddie Cantor in "Kid Boots" will take the stage at the Colonial on Monday, February 23.

29 DISTINCTIVE FEATURES

The TWO Best Magazines in America Now Are ONE

There appears on the news-stands today the first issue of

Hearst's International

combined with

Cosmopolitan

This magazine appears on the stands today, but it won't be there long, for it is a magazine such as no publisher ever before conceived, and its sale will break records.

Consider: Hearst's International has been the most virile and the most vital magazine in the world, Cosmopolitan the most entertaining.

Each of them has sold each month more copies at 35 cents than any competitor in its field has sold at 25 cents or less. By combining the two we have produced in one the most virile, the most vital, the most entertaining magazine in the world.

Add that it is much larger than either Hearst's International or Cosmopolitan was; that it is printed beautifully in color; compare the table of contents with any two other magazines.

Then you will realize why more than one million six hundred thousand buyers will be glad to pay 35 cents for this publication.

DEMPSEY'S TEARS GOT FIGHT THAT LED TO CHAMPIONSHIP

BOUT WITH CARL MORRIS PAVED WAY TO FAME

Is there an element of luck in all success? Jack Dempsey thinks so. Read what he says about Ann Pennington. And then how luck figured in his own career. He says: "I licked Willard in Toledo in 1919, but I figured I won the world championship standing barefoot with one ear frozen, listening outside a bedroom door in the gas-lighted hall in a little dump in Buffalo two years before."

By JACK DEMPSEY
As Told to W. B. Seabrook.
CHAPTER XVI.

WHEN a man who is nobody—who has stuck on the bottom of life's ladder—points to the people perching on the top rungs and insists that Success is a matter of Luck, his opinions command no respect.

They are attributed to envy, sour grapes, and old Inferiority Complex.

But when one who has achieved fame and fortune gives Lady Luck a part of the credit, his views may be well worth hearing.

Jack Dempsey is a great believer in luck. He doesn't think you can change it by carrying a rabbit's foot or tapping on wood. But he thinks it's a vital element in every spectacularly successful career, including his own.

He brought up the subject one night when he and I were sitting in a box at the Follies. He got more applause and almost as much attention as the stars on the stage. The audience cheered him when he came in and he had to stand and bow, blushing like a kid.

A half-hour later we were admiring Ann Pennington's dimpled knees as she danced and I said:

"Jack, there's another of the girls you were supposed to be going to marry."

ANN'S LITTLE JOKE.

He said:

"That was the bunk, all right. We'd look like the giant and midget from a circus, marching down the church aisle. You know, the day after they printed that picture of us in the New York newspapers saying we were engaged, she clipped it out and pasted it on a sheet of paper and sent it to me with 'Mutt and Jeff' written underneath.

"But she's a whiz, a wonderful girl—brains, pep, talent—and on top of that, luck. You've got to have luck, too, along with the rest.

"Maybe you don't know it, but a few years ago she was a little clerk behind a glove counter in a department store over in Camden. She got a job as a chorus girl in a one-night-stand show—and then the luck came in.

"Somebody saw her who had the sense to know she could be made into big time stuff with the right training—and she got her chance. You've got to have the ability—but then you've got to have the chance, too, and that's what I mean by luck."

CONCERNING LUCK.

A couple of hours later, over supper at the Tavern—cold chicken sandwich, baked apple and a glass of milk for the champion—if everybody ate as sensibly as he does, the pill-makers would have to go out of business—I said:

"Jack, what about the element of luck in your own career?"

He said:

"Kid, it's been full of it. In the first place, if I hadn't met Jack Kearns, which was luck, I'd never have been champion. I had twelve other managers and they couldn't make anything out of me. But even afterward we had to have the right breaks, and I'm going to tell you about the closest break we ever had.

"I licked Willard in Toledo in 1919, but I figure I won the world championship standing barefoot and with one ear frozen, listening outside a bedroom door in the gas-lighted hall of a little dump of a cheap hotel back in Buffalo in the Winter of 1917.

"It's the only time I've ever listened outside a door, and it was pure luck that I did it that time, but I'm glad I did it.

FIRST STEP UPWARD.

"Here's the way it happened. It was during the time that John the Barber and a lot of preachers and governors had boxing on the blink. Big fights were hard to get. Kearns had taught me to fight, but I was a gangling kid of twenty-two, weighing under 170 and looking as if I weighed less, and nobody except Jack Kearns had ever thought of me as a possible heavyweight contender.

"Charlie Murray, who was and still is one of the best fight promoters in the East, had booked Carl Morris for a bout at the Queensbury Club in Buffalo. He was going to have Flynn fight him, but I had smashed Flynn out West, and Murray, who had never laid eyes on me either in or outside the ring, got the notion that I might fight Morris.

"Maybe you remember that Carl Morris was a giant. He weighed around 250 pounds and stood six feet four, and he was tough as leather, a hard slugger with a reach of eighty inches and a rough fighter if there ever was one. I don't mean to be touting myself, but you have to know that to understand the story.

"Kearns and I were laying low in a town near Chicago when Murray got us over the long distance telephone. Of course Doc Kearns did the talking. I could tell by Doc's cagey answers that Murray was asking about my size. He said:

"How big? Weight? Sure he's a heavyweight, a great big guy, a big heavyweight."

"But he wouldn't give Murray any figures. Kearns knew what was up, and before we started East he made me buy a suit with big padded shoulders and get a shoemaker to put about a half inch more of leather on the heels of my shoes.

GOOD MONEY GONE.

"We got to Buffalo on a blizzard night and went to a little hotel, planning to go and see Murray in the morning. It was on the way that I got an ear frozen. The little hencoop of a room was hot enough.

"Well, Charlie Murray fooled us, and the money spent on padded shoulders and paid to the shoemaker was lost money. About ten o'clock that night I had all my clothes off except my B. V. D's and was lying on the bed, half dozing, without having crawled under the covers, waiting for Doc to undress, when there was a tap on the door.

"Doc, all unsuspecting, said, 'Come in,' and it was Charlie Murray come to look me over. But I didn't know it was Charlie Murray, and I just lay there like a simp.

"Charlie told me afterwards that he thought I was a rubber or some other hanger-on. His eyes didn't even stop moving when they lit on me, not for more than a second, and then he looked all around the little room and said to Doc:

"'Well, where's this heavyweight of yours?'

"Kearns put the best face on it he could. He said: 'Why, there he is. Jack, get up and shake hands with Mr. Murray.'

SOME KID, JACK.

"I jumped up and stood on my toes and swelled out my chest, but I could tell that he was sore and that I wasn't fooling him at all.

"'Murray was sore as a pup, and I could see it. He said to Kearns, 'For ——, you bring a kid like this to fight Carl Morris! You must be crazy!'

"They talked on for a bit and the Murray whispered to Kearns, and they asked me to go out in the hall for a couple of minutes, and I threw on a bathrobe and went — and I started to walk away from the door —and if I had I don't believe I'd be champion today. It was luck pure luck, that I glued my ear to the keyhole instead.

"And I heard Murray saying: 'It's impossible! It can't be done I'll get myself arrested. It would queer the fight game in Buffalo. It would be a crime. Morris would either kill him, or it would be like a child boxing a man. They don't want to pay to see a boy spanked. It's off.'

TEARS OF YOUTH.

"Well, when Murray came out of the door, I guess I gave him more reason for thinking I was a kid—a child, for I was crying, crying like a fool kid, with tears streaming down my cheeks. I couldn't help it and he knew it by the sound of my voice and tried to say something friendly. I can't tell you exactly what I said to him, but I took hold of his coat and held on to him and kept saying:

"'Please, please let me fight him. I've got to fight him. I've got to have this chance. I can lick him. I've got to do it. You don't even have to pay me. You can keep your $750 and I'll fight him for nothing.

"All of a sudden, while I was yapping like that and pulling at his coat and almost getting down on my knees to him, Murray said:

"'By G—d, you do believe you can do it, and I'm going to give you your chance!'

"I tell you no matter how good a man is, he's got to have luck, he's got to have his chance, and it was my luck that Charlie Murray gave me mine."

The story of how Jack Dempsey, two nights later, tore into the giant Carl Morris like a tiger and literally cut him to pieces, has no place in these articles, but the inside story of how that great victory paved the way toward the Dempsey-Willard fight in Toledo and made Dempsey world champion has an absorbing dramatic interest and will be told later in Jack's own words.

TO BE CONTINUED

In the next chapter Jack Dempsey talks about girls, about beautiful Doris Deane, to whom he was reported engaged, and discusses the entire "girl question" with a frankness which you will find astonishing.

DE VALERA A RABBI IN SCHOOL TEST

Boston's Noted Blind Beggar Fears Poverty

DIPLOMAT'S SISTER HELD IN SHOOTING

Mme. Kossara Spinaljowitch, sister of the Serbian Ambassador to France, is held by police in New York charged with shooting Chris G. Hupfel, son of John C. G. Hupfel, millionaire brewer.

New York, Feb. 10.—Bail was refused Mrs. Kossara Spinaljowitch, forty years old, when she was arraigned in Yorkville Court today, after having been arrested near the spot on Lexington avenue where Chris G. Huppel, fifty-year-old son of a wealthy brewer, was felled by pistol bullets.

Charged with suspicion of felonious assault, the woman, who is a sister of the Serbian Ambassador to France, demanded that an attorney be assigned to her at once, and that her trial follow immediately, in order that she might not be "framed."

Two witnesses of the shooting identified the prisoner as the woman who tossed a small calibre pistol into the gutter just as Huppel, with wounds in the neck and head, dropped to the pavement. She was held for examination tomorrow.

THIERY AT ASYLUM; UNDER CONSTANT GUARD

Dr. Raymond D. Thiery of Somerville today took up the routine of the ward where insane criminals are confined at the State Hospital in Bridgewater. Dr. Thiery's commitment for life was ordered after Assistant District Attorney Rushnell told Judge Risk in Middlesex Superior Court the physician had confessed to alienists that he killed his brother-in-law, David M. Noble. Dr. Thiery will be under constant guard.

10 PER CENT. CUT BY MANCHESTER SHOE FIRM

Manchester, Feb. 10.—A ten per cent. wage reduction was announced today by the management of the Plant Brothers Shoe Factory here. About 500 workers are affected. Other factories in the city are expected to take similar action.

DE VALERA LISTED AS RABBI

Brockton Pupils Also Think Dawes Is Valet to the President

Brockton, Feb. 10.—Babe Ruth is a grand opera singer, Brookhart is a deer from Finland and De Valera is a Jewish Rabbi in New York, if some of the Brockton High School pupils are to be believed.

Answers so surprising and ludicrous that they sound like the work of a professional jokesmith are contained in the papers submitted by the Brockton pupils in an intelligence test.

The pupils were given the names of persons prominent in the current news of the day or who have been much in the public eye in recent years. They were asked to write the name of each person and following it an explanatory sentence.

SOME RESULTS.

Here are some of the amazing results:

Babe Ruth is an opera singer.

Lloyd George is father of the Prince of Wales.

Paavo Nurmi is a famous Swedish singer.

Bill Tilden is champion 145-pound golfer.

Tell about Muscles Shoals? Is a rheumatic affliction; also Henry Ford's home for consumptives.

Abyssinia—Four petalled flower; a State in the northern part of Utah; the home of the Secretary of the Treasury Kellogg, manufacturer of Cornflakes, of the Philippines, and consul to China.

Ammuhsen—Big wrestler, who recently defeated Strangler Lewis.

MacDonald—Salesman for Packard automobiles; the king of England.

Brookhart—A deer from Finland.

Daugherty—Swedish ambassador to Liberia.

Dawes—President Coolidge's valet.

Pinchot — One of Tony Sarg's marionettes; a city in France.

Sun Yat Sen—The president of the Chinese Federation of Laundry Workers; also a vernacular term for the eclipse; a sort of lord.

Heroin — A famous kind of fish found mostly in Taunton; a city in Chicago.

Davis—Author of the "Mud Peddler."

Corfui—Gloria Swanson's latest husband; a new cough medicine.

Curie — A kind of sauce; inventor of the X-ray.

Al Smith—A man who flew around the world in a certain number of days; a New York newsman.

Dinosaur—The new French ambassador to the United States; also a very old egg.

ANCIENT HISTORY.

King Tut—Father of Cleopatra.

Charles W. Eliot—A shoe manufacturer, for whom there is a street named in Brockton.

Poincare—A general in the revolutionary war.

Gandhi—A female goose; a pagan god worshipped by the people of India.

Hahr—A noise made by an engine; the scene of the volcanic eruption in China.

De Valera—The king of Ireland; a Jewish rabbi of New York.

Lenin—A kind of cloth made in Ireland.

Mellon—A kind of fruit; the inventor of the baby food.

Frances Willard—A pugilist; an ex-prizefighter's wife.

Maude Ballington Booth—the man who shot Abraham Lincoln in the theatre box.

Mussolini—A manufacturer of black shirts; a noted wrestler.

Heinkneetz—An automobile manufacturer.

Hugo Stinnes—An author; the inventor of water wings.

Teapot Dome—A statue found in King Tut's tomb; the name given to the dome of the capitol.

Underwood—The maker of devilled ham; inventor of the typewriter.

H. G. Wells—Author of "The Origin of the Kinds."

Violetoes—A famous tenor of the Metropolitan Company; leader of the weis.

"BABY BORGIA" BAFFLES POLICE

Character studies of little seven-year-old Alsa Thompson of Los Angeles, who has recanted her story of poisoning three persons, including her twin sisters. Though alienists believe she is now telling the truth, police are still holding the child pending further investigation. The child's case is one of the strangest in police annals of the country.

Los Angeles, Feb. 10.—Seven-year-old Alsa Thompson, who last week admitted she had killed her twin sisters in Dauphin, Manitoba, Bek — A Dutch coffee; winner of the peace prize, and poisoned an other person since coming to Los Angeles, has "confessed" that her sensational narrative was fiction, it was announced in Juvenile Court in connection with the request of the girl's mother, Mrs. Russell Thompson, for custody of her daughter.

Alienists expressed the belief that Alsa's latest "confession" was more accurate than the one heard by police, but she was left in custody of juvenile authorities.

LIFTS BAN ON N. H. SCHOOL ATHLETE

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 10.—The suspension of John Bozek, star athlete of Manchester High School, for misconduct, was lifted today, following a conference between Chairman Allan M. Wilson of the school board and Attorney Timothy F. O'Connor, counsel for Bozek.

The incident that led to Bozek's suspension has been shrouded in mystery.

Bozek's status at the school will not be definitely established until Friday night, when his case will have the attention of the entire school board in executive session.

Atty. O'Conner has announced that if the School Board decides unfavorably toward Bozek he will appeal to the Supreme Court if necessary to have him reinstated.

Because of Bozek's athletic prowess his suspension has attracted unusual attention. He has captained football, basketball and baseball teams since his athletic debut in 1923. He was mentioned in the all American High school football team of the Chicago meet last Fall, and was the outstanding player in nearly every game the Manchester team played last season.

YOAKUM FIGHTS COOLIDGE PLAN FOR FARM RELIEF

Washington, Feb. 10.—The Williams bill to carry out recommendations of the President's agricultural commission was assailed today before the House Agricultural Committee by B. F. Yoakum, chairman of the Farmers-to-Consumers League, who said it would protect those now depriving the farmers "of their just dues." It "would so strengthen the oppressive powers" controlling farm prices that the farmers "would be left the choice of losing their farms through foreclosure or deserting them," Yoakum avowed. Meantime, before the Senate committee, W. M. Jardine, a member of the commission, declared its recommendations were based on views widely held by farmers and followed testimony of authorities on agriculture.

FAKE AUCTIONS ARE PROTECTED SENATOR SAYS

Charges that "fake jewelry auction stores" in Boston are being protected were made today to Senator William J. Francis of Charlestown at a hearing at the State House.

Speaking before the legislative committee on legal affairs on a bill favored by the police commissioner and retail jewelers calling for the licensing of the auction store business Francis said:

"Some unseen power is behind these auction rooms. I know who is protecting them. They must get out of my district or I'll tell who is protecting them on the floor of the Senate."

John W. Mardek, secretary to Police Commissioner Herbert Wilson, challenged Francis, saying:

"If here are any charges to be made that the police are protecting these places now is the time to make them."

ABSOLVES POLICE.

Francis then jumped up and reiterated his charge but absolved the police department of any connection with the protecting parties.

In urging that something be done to curb the auctioneers "who can talk an arm into your vest," Merrick said that Boston is the dumping ground.

"They have been driven out of every other city and town," he declared. "They boast they are beyond the police. The only way to exterminate them is to license the place of business so that th ator can be pulled upon complaint."

CRIME BREEDERS.

In answer to a question from the committee, Merrick asserted that the auction stores are "a good breeding place for pick pockets."

Among others who spoke for the bill were Louis S. Smith, secretary of the Massachusetts Jewelers' Association; Attorney George M. Poland and Representative Francis X. Coyne. Smith submitted a list of 134 names of chambers of commerce and individuals from all parts of the State in favor of restrictive legislation.

Senator John H. Davis, chairman of the committee, indicated that some sort of legislation would be favored and requested the assistance of the petitioners in redrafting a suitable bill.

WILL REDUCE HOURS IN BRITISH COTTON MILLS

Manchester, Eng., Feb. 10.—The Federation of Master Cotton Spinners announced today that the necessary majority had been obtained for the proposal to reduce the working hours in the mills spinning American cotton from 55½ to 55. This affects two-thirds of the Federation mills and at least 100,000 mill workers.

RAPS LAW TO DISPOSE OF MENDICANTS

By GRACE DESCHAMPS

"Bennie" Hallarn is out of luck.

The thin stream of coppers, nickels and sometimes dimes which find their way into "Bennie's" battered hat, is likely to be stopped.

A State commission appointed to investigate conditions among the blind in Massachusetts, has recommended that blind beggars be kept off the streets.

"And where," Ben wearily wants to know, "where am I to go?"

Ben, who was unaware of the State's interest in his condition until a reporter apprised him of the fact, scratched his frowsy head and pondered over the altruism of State commissions.

"If I wuz a younger fellow," mused Ben, "seems to me I'd strike off down South. Never did like Boston, anyhow."

FAMILIAR FIGURE.

Hallarn, whose professional haunts are Dover street and the lower end of Washington street, is a familiar figure at those points. Just what will become of him if his daily activities are outlawed, he is at a loss to know.

His sightless old eyes have looked out on a world of darkness for thirty-eight years. When he was twenty-one years old an explosion deprived him of everything except a relentless spark of life that demanded food and a bed of some kind when night came.

In those years he has wandered about from place to place taking philosophically whatever came to him; a meal, a few coppers or a burst of generosity from some happy passer-by.

"I'm on the level," asserts Ben stolidly. "I ain't going to move unless I've got to. I'm not one of these rich beggers; I have less than five dollars to my name and I never had much more than that at one time in my life.

WORKED IN WEST.

"I used to work out West in harvest time and I was pretty good at it but I drifted back East again and get used to the pavements. It's all I can do now.

"I always stay down in my own place—out of the way of the richer people along Tremont or Boylston streets. I've made a few friends where I hang out and they know me and know I haven't any fortune buried away. And, besides, I think ordinary people are more liable to give you a little help."

Hallarn, who has been in Boston for several years, is one of the city's best known mendicants.

100 HURT IN FRENCH CATHOLIC PARTY RIOT

Marseilles, France, Feb. 10.—Nearly one hundred persons were wounded or bruised during attempts by Communists to break up a meeting of the newly organized Catholic Party, presided over by General de Castelnau here, Senator Plaisiecex, the Socialist mayor of Marseilles, has stopped all public meetings for an indefinite period, whether organized by parties of the right or left. The people of Marseilles are in a high state of feeling, especially the Catholics, who resent the interference with their meeting and avow that the police failed to afford it proper protection.

EIGHTH MAN CONVICTED IN $18,000,000 BANK CRASH

Toronto, Feb. 10.—The eighth conviction of officers of the defunct Home Bank of Canada in connection with that institution's failure in 1923, for more than $18,000,000 was recorded today when F. J. H. Russell, a former director, was found guilty of having concurred in returning to the government a false statement of the bank's affairs.

VICTOR MAY GET WILLS MATCH

By JACK CONWAY.

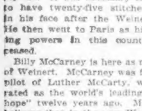
CHARLEY WEINERT, rated as the world's fourth leading heavyweight by Tex Rickard, rules a favorite over Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight sensation, for their ten-round battle which will be staged by the Suffolk A. A. at Mechanics Building tonight.

Weinert has been in Boston since Sunday night. He finished his training at Kelley & Hayes' Gym. Those who saw the conqueror of Louis Firpo in action were thrilled by his brilliant boxing and ability to punch from all angles.

Although he didn't knock Firpo out, Weinert battered up the Wild Bull of the Pampas more than Dempsey did. It was necessary for Firpo to have twenty-five stitches taken in his face after the Weinert mill. He then went to Paris as his drawing powers in this country had ceased.

Billy McCarney is here as manager of Weinert. McCarney was formerly pilot of Luther McCarty, who was rated as the world's leading "white hope" twelve years ago. McCarney believes that in the new Weinert he has the man to defeat Dempsey.

"Weinert is a year younger than the champion," said McCarney.



Jack Sharkey Charley Weinert

"Dempsey is twenty-nine years of age, Charley twenty-eight.

"Tom Gibbons, whom Dempsey would like to fight because he knows he can defeat him, is thirty-five years of age. Harry Wills is also thirty-five years old. Old men like Gibbons and Wills cannot defeat Dempsey.

"Weinert is a better boxer than the champion. He is also a stiff puncher. Firpo will tell you that Charley socked him around just as hard as Dempsey did. I believe Dempsey has gone back. The carefree life of a millionaire heavyweight champion hasn't helped Dempsey as a fighter. If Dempsey were to meet Weinert tonight, the Newark man would win."

WEINERT is in the best possible condition for tonight's contest. He tuned up by knocking out Italian Jim Herman and Jack Downey. He realizes he will have to be at his best to win. Following his tussle with Firpo, Weinert clashed with Sharkey at Newark. In the early part of the bout, Weinert's skill gave him the advantage. Sharkey kept forcing the issue at all times and finally got the range and carried the last five frames.

SHARKEY will go to the post tonight confident in his ability to win. He has been shifting to a winning form of late. Following his stirring tussle with Weinert, he stopped Jim New York, and trounced Jack DeMave, New York sensation who had a run of twenty-one victories. He then gave Sully Montgomery, former Centre College football star, a boxing lesson in this city.

Sharkey realizes that if he wins over Weinert he will occupy a place in the title sun. He will be able to demand a bout with Harry Wills, considered by most of the experts as the leading contender for a match with Dempsey.

If Sharkey should win over Weinert and Wills he would be the natural opponent for Dempsey. Unlike most of the other heavyweight contenders, Sharkey is YOUNG. He is twenty-three years of age and is still improving as a boxer and will continue to do so at least three more years.

PAT McCARTHY of Roxbury, who recently had his sight corrected by three operations, will appear in the semi-final of eight rounds. He will have Stanley Meyers of Buffalo as opponent. There will also be two more eights. Walter Lee of Denver will clash with Jack Williams of Chicago, while Red Griffin of Chelsea will have Young Senna of New Bedford as an opponent.

At Baltimore, Md.—Bob Garcia, was awarded decision over Lew Mayer, twelve rounds.

OLD TIME SPORT STORIES

By GEORGE V. TUOHEY

When Joe Whitehead, Now a Boston Policeman, Lost to Ned Ten Eyck in Thrilling Rowing Race on Lake Quinsigamond

This is the twenty-fifth of a series of articles on old-time athletes by George V. Tuohey, famous sports promoter, who has been prominent in athletics for thirty-five years.

Rowing has the great appeal it had years ago around Boston, when the Charles River was the real center of the world's aquatic Hub. The exception is in college rowing, of course, which is at present at the height of its interest.

In days not so long ago that the members of various rowing clubs do not easily recall the Charles River, before the creation of the wonderful dam, was covered with rowing craft of every nature from singles to eights, with an occasional barge, when the tides were right.

Joe Whitehead

Standing out among the most active clubs of the past were the Riversides, the Millstreams, the Unions and the St. Alphonsus, while nearly every organization boasted a barge crew or a sculler of more than local reputation. George Hosmer, George Faulkner, Dick Glendon, Fred Plaisted, Ned Hanlon, were among the noted pros who worked on the river, while there were amateurs galore who went forth to various national regattas and came back with championships.

Cleaned Up Everything

Among the great amateurs of his day was Joe Whitehead, now a member of the police force, attached to Division 2, Joe had cleaned up everything in local regattas and had captured two senior national championships.

In one of these national regattas held at Saratoga was a 16-year-old lad in the intermediate single sculls who was to become the most famous sculler of his time and the first American to win the Diamond Sculls at Henley. This was Edward Hanlon Ten Eyck, representing the Wachusetts Boat Club of Worcester, an oarsman of the fourth generation, whose great grandfather, grandfather and father were noted oarsmen in their day, the son of the present rowing coach at Syracuse, and godson of Edward Hanlon, former world's champion.

For some reason young Ned, as he was best known, did not compete in the National regatta in 1896. Friends of Whitehead claimed that fear of defeat probably induced Old Jim to keep his young son away from the Riverside champion, but I am inclined to think that the real reason was Ned's youth and the protests of his mother.

Matched With Ten Eyck

But whatever the reason the admirers of both men stood staunchly by their favorites and shouted from the housetops their belief that if the men ever met it would be a grand race, but with their own choice winning.

The result of such feeling was inevitable, and it was no surprise when the announcement was made that a match race had been arranged to take place on Lake Quinsigamond, over the national course, to be decided on October 1, 1896.

On the day of the race every lover of rowing in Boston went down to Worcester to swell the crowd of 4,000 which watched the event from various vantage points, with the betting element strongly intrenched on Regatta Point. Eugene Buckley, now boxing commissioner, was referee and starter; J. Frank Facey represented Whitehead, while Pat Hurley watched after the interests of Ten Eyck on the steamer Tatasit, on which were the officials.

Rowed in Rough Water

The mid-day was bright and clear, but as the sun went down a narrow-chilling breeze swept down the Lake with force enough to make the water rough. This suited Whitehead to a dot, as he was used to rough water, while Ten Eyck was more accustomed to the smooth lake surface.

Whitehead, as champion, as well as because he was a bigger man physically than his opponent, was the favorite in the betting, and Jimmy Ormand played him to the limit. A few of the Worcester men took all the money offered. Pat Hurley especially.

Beautiful Start

They got away to a beautiful start, with Joe going into the lead, rowing twenty-nine strokes to the minute, as against thirty-one for Ten Eyck. Joe gradually opened up a full length as they neared the turn at the three-quarter-mile mark.

Just before reaching this point Whitehead turned to look for his buoy, and thus created an opening for young Ned which he took full advantage of, and they turned the flags on fairly even terms. Suddenly Whitehead sagged in his boat and to the onlookers it was seen that something had gone amiss.

Meantime Ten Eyck had gained two full lengths and was rowing so easily that he had only increased the stroke to thirty-two at this point. Joe soon recovered, however, and set out to recover the lost ground.

"Joe's coming; Joe's coming. He'll win, he'll win yet," cried the Boston group. And Joe DID come. Digging his blades deep into the rough water his shell gradually crawled up on the leader and with half a mile to go Joe started a spurt that will live forever in the memory of everyone who saw it. Coming to the finish Joe made another final drive, but it was a dying effort, although he gained a half length. Ten Eyck went across the line a winner by a length and a quarter in 3 minutes 52 2-5 seconds, the fastest time on record for the course.

School Athletes Burn Up Boards at East Armory

By FRED C. LANE.

Boston High School track athletes will pound the boards at the East Armory every day this week with the exception of Saturday.

The intermediates of Commerce and East Boston will open festivities today.

On Wednesday Brighton, Hyde Park and South Boston gambol in the big drill shed in a three-cornered affair. Hyde Park is a heavy favorite, but Brighton has come along fast in the last month or so and should force the Daly charges to the limit. Thursday is a mixed affair with teams of the district and city league competing. Charlestown, Mechanic Arts and Boston Latin will be the contestants. Latin is a top-heavy favorite.

To wind up a busy week, English High meets Latin school on Friday. This is the meet that track followers of Greater Boston have long looked forward to. English passes strong in the junior and intermediate divisions, but in the senior division is a different proposition, with Latin having far the best of it.

The outcome of this meet will in a way give the prophets an idea just who is who in the big regionalized games that come next month. English has long been the leader of this annual meet, but judging from the way Hyde Park, East Boston and Latin School have come in the past two months it is almost safe to say that a new track ruler will be proclaimed this season.

Scholastic Chatter

Frank O'Brien, one of the most promising of Coach Fitzgerald's Latin school runners, is lost to the team until the outdoor season because of a torn ligament.

Dorchester has only Commerce High to down in the City Hockey League before claiming the title. A real fight is being waged in the District Leagues between Jamaica Plain, East Boston and Hyde Park.

Hyde Park has played off all its games to date and stands on top. A victory by Jamaica over East Boston on Saturday would tie up proceedings.

"Shrimp" Gillis of the Commerce team is one of the smallest and yet one of the fastest schoolboys playing hockey. This is his first year as a puck chaser and from all indications looks like the goods.

The goal tender's position on the All Scholastic team is going to be a difficult one to decide. O'Keefe of Commerce, Carey of B. C., Captain Silberberg of English and Lynn of Dorchester, appear as the best to date.

Hockey coaches that have witnessed Hyde Park in action are loud in their praise over the playing of Billy Pollard. This wing player is fast, aggressive and a clever stick handler.

Boston College defeated a crippled B. A. A. sextet at the Arena in this Thursday's basketball game, 2 to 1.

Having disposed of the deadwood, the Boston Bruins are now squared away for the final month's competition in the National Hockey League series. The Bruins will not qualify in the play-off for the pro title but their present makeup will have considerable to do with determining which teams will be on the inside in the grand slam.

One of the teams nursing championship notions is at the Arena tonight, the St. Pats of Toronto. This team has won six of its last seven games yet there are many followers who believe the Bruins will take a fall out of this team tonight.

The aggressive spirit displayed by the Bruins has the other pro teams completely mystified. The Bruins have a knack of combining their rugged hockey with scoring hockey that is bound to upset any team.

The Bruins are using Noonnie Shay on left wing, Stan Jackson at center and Jimmy Herberts on right wing. This trio represent the most aggressive forward line in the National League. Jackson is playing a whale of a game in center ice.

The return of Doc Stewart to the Boston net has been a lifesaver This excellent goalie loves tough competition. He gets great delight on stopping Babe Dye's shots

BRITISH BOXERS ON HISTORICAL TOUR OF CITY

While the British boxers here to clash with the stars of Canada and Boston in the first international tournament in history at Mechanics Building Thursday night are looking forward to a victory, they are not overlooking an opportunity to witness all the historical spots of interest in Boston. Maj. W. H. Cuddy is personally conducting the boys to the various sections of the city.

The Britons already have been taken to Bunker Hill and Concord and enjoyed the trip, while the boys were guests of the Boston Arena at the Leo Hughes benefit. It was their first glimpse of indoor ice hockey, which is not popular in England.

Tonight the boys will be guests of one of Boston's leading theatres, while Cuddy is planning a dinner for the boys before they leave the city.

DOLPH CHEEK GIVES UP BASEBALL FOR FOOTBALL

Baseball practice got under way in the baseball cage at Harvard when a likely appearing squad of battery candidates reported to Coach Eddie Mahan. Among those present were Erwin Gelzer of the 1923 team, Phil Spalding and John Toulmin of the 1924 nine and several former freshmen hurlers.

Dolph Cheek, Harvard football captain, was not one of the catching candidates who reported. The Crimson grid leader has decided to devote himself to Spring football and track this Spring and give up baseball.

This decision came as a surprise to many, as Cheek was the regular varsity catcher for the bulk of last season, and he caught both Yale games.

ROCKNE ENTERTAINED BY REPRESENTATIVE FISH

Knute Rockne, holder of the ribbons over Notre Dame's famed "Four Horsemen," was on his way back to the great open spaces today after being entertained by his old college chum, Representative William A. Fish of No. 12 Rowena street, Dorchester.

The representative is better known as "Bill" Fish, old Dorchester High School baseball and football star and a member of Notre Dame baseball teams of more than decade ago. He was a classmate of Rockne at Notre Dame, both being graduated in 1913.

"ROBBY" DISCHARGED FROM HOSPITAL

Baltimore, Feb. 9.—Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Brooklyn National League Club, has been discharged from the hospital where he had been under observation for more than a month, and went to his home.

"Robbie" underwent two operations while at the hospital. He said today that he was feeling first rate and expected to leave in about two weeks for Clearwater, Fla., where the Dodgers will train this Spring.

QUIMET TAKES LEAD IN BERMUDA TOURNEY

Riddels Bay, Bermuda, Feb. 10.—Francois Quimet, of the Woodland Club, Boston, playing from scratch, in the 36-hole handicap event, on the Riddells Bay links, scored a total of 147 for two matches which was good enough to win the low gross for six strokes.

SPORT BROADCAST

by JIM MURPHY

THE RIGHT IDEA

Head Coach E. A. Stevens of the Harvard crews has the right idea. He announces that he is prepared to change the Crimson crew policy and invites the whole university to hear what he has to say about it. Nothing could be fairer.

E. A. Stevens

He wants it understood that rowing is open to any student at Cambridge, as it always has been, despite the idea prevalent to the contrary. Also fair enough.

Regardless of Harvard's rowing policy in the past, present or future, it does no harm, and often a lot of good, to squelch stories going the rounds to the effect that you "can't get on a Harvard crew unless you are a hi-brow." This is the story the writer has been hearing since he was old enough to understand what rowing was all about and Coach Stevens is the first one to our knowledge, to come out flat-footedly and deny it.

CHANCE FOR ALL

As Coach Stevens so nicely puts it, "the crew is an organization for the college if it is to be at all successful." That's the proper spirit. Every boy should be given an even chance. Money or social standing shouldn't count. Some of the best athletes are working their way through college and if they can make the crew or any other sport team it is all the more to their credit.

Charley Brickley ran a laundry to help pay his way through Harvard. He was the greatest drop kicker the Crimson ever had. Eskio Clark, track center of a few years back, did tutoring to help defray his tuition expenses. Bill Bingham, of remember right-ly, was another who worked his way through, and Bill was one of the most brilliant middle distance runners that ever sported the Crimson. There are thousands of others in colleges today in the same circumstances as Brickley, Bingham and Clark. If they have the goods, we are sure they will be given the opportunity to make their mark in athletics.

"ADONIS OF RING"

Charley Weinert, who battles Jack Sharkey at Mechanics Building tonight, is called the "Adonis of the Ring." After viewing half a dozen pictures of Weinert in different poses we are inclined to believe that the gent who tagged Charley with the aforementioned title did a good job. Weinert may be a few scars of battle but his beauty will never be questioned.

Babe Ruth is now down to 236½. He carved nine pounds from his bulky frame during the first week of his training at Hot Springs. The first week may be easy, but the second week is going to be harder and the third still harder. The Babe's task is a tough one and if he carries out his program of taking off thirty-five pounds in two months he is going to find some of his tremendous strength sapped away in the process.

DEMPSEY ASKS $1,000,000 FOR 2 BOUTS

By DAVIS J. WALSH
(International News Service Sports Editor.)

New York, Feb. 10.—The rather dignified sum of $1,000,000, almost the size of the gate on the night Dempsey fought Firpo, has been set as the price of the champion's possible return to the ring, according to reports in circulation today.

It is declared that Jack Kearns, noted collector of rare and well done coins, has demanded and will get that amount for his champion before the latter will step out at all against Tom Gibbons and Harry Wills during the impending outdoor season. Nearly three quarters of a million has been demanded for the Wills frolic alone, it is said. For the Gibbons bout, it was said that Kearns' demand was exactly $350,000 with the privilege of cutting in on the receipts above that figure.

Nurmi Wins at Portland A. L. Games

Portland, Me., Feb. 10.—Paavo Nurmi won the special 2,000-yard run at the American Legion games here but failed to touch the mark of seven minutes, 58 and 1-5 seconds for the distance. Nurmi's time was eight minutes, 14 2-5 seconds.

His competitors were Sullivan of Colby, Whittier of Bowdoin, and Ludvell of Fort Preble.

H. H. Hormell of Medford, Mass., High School won the Interscholastic 40-yard dash in 4 4-5 seconds. In the 300-yard Interscholastic run, Hormell again won.

Leo Larrivee of Holy Cross won the invitation three-quarter mile run with James Connolly of Washington second and Jole Ray, Illinois A. C., third. Larrivee won easily in three minutes 16 seconds. Connolly came from behind with a rush to nip Ray at the tape. Lloyd Hahn of Boston A. A., the other starter, trailed the whole distance.

In the 600-yard invitation run Georges Marsters, Georgetown track captain, led from the start.

FRENCH CHAMP AGREES TO MEET KID KAPLAN

Paris, Feb. 10—The sporting paper L'Auto says Edouard Mascart's manager, M. Tetard, has cabled Tex Rickard, New York fight promoter, accepting his terms for a bout with the world's featherweight champion, Kid Kaplan, in Madison Square Garden on March 20. Mascart will receive 17 per cent. of the receipts with a fixed guarantee of $6,000. He expects to sail for New York about the end of this month.

DEAL FOR MEUSEL HELD UP

Braves Balk at Paying a Fat Salary; Catcher May Go in Trade

New York, Feb. 10—The question of salary to be paid Emil "Irish" Meusel was said today to be the only thing holding up the proposed transfer of the player from the New York Giants to the Boston Braves.

Meusel has had a fat contract with the Giants for several years but slumped so badly during the 1924 season that it is understood that Manager Dave Bancroft of the Braves is unwilling to assume its obligations. The figure is said to be close to $15,000.

If the deal is consummated it is probable that a Boston catcher will come here in exchange for Meusel.

BRAVES RECRUIT AFTER SHARE OF PURCHASE PRICE

Los Angeles, Feb. 9—Jimmy Welsh, young outfielder sold by Wade K. Iifer of the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast League to the Boston Braves for $27,000 and three players, is on his way to Los Angeles to confer with Kliefer in the hopes he will be able to obtain some of the purchase money. Welsh has not signed his Boston contract and the deal may fall through if it was said.

JOHNSON TO JOIN SENATORS IN 2 WEEKS

Reno, Nev., Feb. 10—Walter Johnson has given up any hope of acquiring a Pacific Coast league club, and will pitch for the Washington American League team again this season, he said today. He will join the team in Florida in two weeks.

WGI TO HAVE STUDIO IN BOSTON

Negotiations have been completed for the installation of a broadcasting station in Boston and it will be ready for use in Boston. This station will be tied up by wire with WGI at Medford Hillside.

According to plans this station will have among the best in the country. The equipment has been selected for its exceptional qualities. The latest type microphone and amplifiers will be used and the station will go on the air with 500 watts power instead of 50 as they are using now.

With the studio located in the heart of the city where it may be reached easily, it should be possible to secure artists talent for broadcasting. The difficulty of getting artists to go out to Medford will have been overcome.

The new studio is expected to be ready during the latter part of March.

NORA LEE

Heart and Soul of 1924 Flapper Laid Bare in Best Story by Author of "Chickie"

START THE STORY HERE TODAY

Margaret Meadows married Will Lee at seventeen. His dissolute habits soon made her miserable. The night he raised his hand to his two-year-old child he and Nora Lee ran away from home with her baby. Margaret supported her daughter by teaching school in several villages, finally settling in Tarrdale, where she met Andrew and they fell in love. But he was tied to an invalid wife and Margaret refused to let him leave her. Nora, at seventeen, fell in love with Dane Herrick. Andrew was killed in an auto accident. Nora met Maxwell Reed, who made love to her. Margaret died and Nora was left alone. She plunged into a fast set of flappers. Dane upbraided her for her association with Max.

CAN BE WORKED AS EASILY AS SOFT PINE
Pyradiolin developed by du Pont; tested and passed by Cruft High Tension Electrical Laboratory of Harvard.
Du Pont Panels combine great beauty with a high degree of dielectric and other radio properties. In addition, they are semi-flexible and, therefore, conform to the slight unevenness of radio cabinets, thus doing away with the buckling which results when a rigid panel is forced into place.
Pyradiolin is so easy to drill and cut that it actually takes a wood-screw without starting. Yet, once in place, Pyradiolin holds instruments with permanent rigidity.
Du Pont Panels, and Dials to match, in the sizes required for the Four-R, can be purchased at most good dealers. Each panel is packed with a cross-section showing exactly which makes laying out easy. If your dealer cannot supply you, simply write to the Boston office.

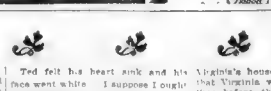
Failed to Wait

May Get Married

DAILY SHORT STORY



RIGHT ON THE DOT

By Ruth Logan

Ted felt his heart sink and his face went white. "I suppose I ought to congratulate you."

"Not unless she's on time," grinned Danforth. "If you want to know the outcome you can wait in the lobby and see if Virginia arrives on the dot of two."

Ted didn't want to see Virginia arrive but he wanted to know if she were going to be there, so he installed himself on the mezzanine floor and waited.

She arrived just as exactly on the stroke of two as it was possible to be. Danforth met her and was wearing his impossible air of satisfaction with himself. Ted was forced to admit that Danforth had joined Virginia out of her chauffeurless way of keeping appointments. He watched the two below standing in close conference. Then he saw Virginia snap her little gloved fingers angrily and turn on her heel. She left the hotel alone.

Ted did not make an opportunity to speak to Danforth. In fact, he didn't care to have Danforth know he was watching the outcome. But he did slip out of the hotel and stop in at a drug store and call Virginia's house. Her mother said that Virginia would be home some time before three and Ted called a cab and went out.

Became Wild.

When Virginia arrived and saw Ted, she smiled ever so graciously and asked him to excuse her for a few minutes. She went upstairs and Ted began strumming on the piano. An hour passed before he was conscious of it. He loved music and he liked to play when no one was listening.

Virginia had always wanted him to play for her but he had been something of a stone wall to her entreaties. When he discovered that he had been waiting and playing an hour, he was wild with rage. He called the maid.

"You can tell your mistress that I've waited for the last time. If she hadn't time for me, she could have said so. It is a direct insult—"

"Miss Virginia isn't upstairs, sad Mara softly. "She came down."

Then the maid tiptoed around the table and smiled as she looked down at the couch behind it. There asleep lay Virginia. When she opened her eyes, she smiled at him.

"Ted, I never was so angry in my life as I was today. Cullen Danforth played a trick on me. Your voices are so much alike I thought it was you talking and I went down to meet him—"

Ted gave one shout and was on his knees at the side of the couch.

"Virginia, were you keeping an appointment right on the dot with me?"

"Yes, I was."

"You thought you were going to marry me"

"Yes I did."

"Well, why don't you?"

He Never Asked.

"You never asked me," she said looking him straight in the eyes.

"I'm asking you now. I loathe big weddings. Let's do it just as you thought you were going to do it. Meet me tomorrow at two—".

Virginia nodded her head in assent. "And Ted, if I'm late, will you wait?"

"Absolutely," he told her.

And she was late and he waited and they were married and are living no more unhappily than most spirited young couples who love each other.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Does the Man Who Is Good to His Bootlegger Make a Good Husband?

SAL R. ATUS, Saugus—I should say not. If he's good to his bootlegger, he has no time to give to his wife. And no money, either. A husband has to be one of two things—a fool or an egg, and he's generally both. My husband is in the stimulant business, so I know.

EPPIE GRAMM, Cambridge—It all depends. Some of the boys have the real stuff, so a man has to be good to them. But it's a cinch that the man who is harsh and unkind to his closest friend will hardly be considerate of a wife, if he has time to get one. I had a perfectly splendid chap all lined until prohibition came along. Then he began to step out and I lost him, so I speak with feeling in this very important matter.

ANN T. HOOCH, Hopkinton—Why the very idea. I don't know what this country is coming to. I should think a man who couldn't make his own wouldn't dare to get married. He certainly wouldn't have the saving habits that any girl should demand of a husband. Men have it too easy these days. If I had one, he'd walk the line, you can bet. I wouldn't mind grabbing off one of the better class of bootleggers myself, though.

FINISH THIS ONE

DRUGGED! INDICAN Shows Why People Feel That Way

ASK your doctor about INDICAN. He will tell you it is a substance looked for in examining his patients thoroughly. If he finds it in you — it means that the poisons of constipation are seeping through your blood into every muscle and every joint. This is what does the damage. It robs you of your pep—it poisons your optimism and good spirit — it pales your face and puts blemishes there—it gives you headaches—causes indigestion. No wonder you feel drugged when constipated.

You can get only temporary relief from cool laxatives but Carter's Little Liver Pills, it has been found, not only relieve the stomach, liver and intestines quickly, but also drive the INDICAN away.

Make This Test: Have an analysis made of your secretions and if the doctor reports the presence of INDICAN, or if you can "feel" how poisoned you are—immediately start taking Carter's Little Liver Pills as prescribed by him, or according to directions. Now have another test made and see how the INDICAN disappears, see how your complexion brightens and clears, your tongue is sweet and clean, you can eat like a hot ocean, in more cases.

Important: Carter's Little Liver Pills, used for 47 years by millions of people all over the world, is a purely vegetable preparation and contains no drugs of any nature. It therefore acts in a natural way and is not habit forming.

He didn't know he was constipated—he "felt fine and dandy." See how the test proves he had INDICAN, the poison of constipation.

Same man after taking Carter's Little Liver Pills for only a few days—the clean, normal specimen—FREE FROM ANY TRACE OF INDICAN.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS

What will this test tell you?

WILL it say danger . . . failure ahead? Will it show you that your loss of ambition, your loss of energy, of vitality, is due to anemia . . . blood starvation?

Unless the rich, red blood comes rushing back immediately after you have firmly pressed the flesh between hand and thumb, it is a warning signal . . . it means lack of vitalizing, energizing, strength-building blood.

For thirty-two years, physicians have prescribed Gude's Pepto-Mangan. Its rich iron and manganese content is the sure way and the safe way to regain health.

Your druggist has Gude's Pepto-Mangan in either liquid or tablet form.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

ONE of the greatest things in the world is a bank account. Providing you put your money in a bank that has a cashier who doesn't like to travel.

YOUR money isn't safe if you trust it with a teller who has the wanderlust.

IT'S all right for young men to go West, but too many of them go South.

THEY want to see the world, but they're too lazy to join the navy.

NEVER do business with a bank that you haven't got confidence in. There's no sense in letting your money stay in their vault and get four per cent. if you're going to stay home and get worried.

PEOPLE who pay their bills by check always have a receipt and aren't in any danger of paying them twice. Of course some people never pay them even once.

BOBBY FINDS A PECULIAR JUMPING JACK

By Foxy Grandpa.

WE were in Epping Forest in England. It was late in the afternoon. It had been raining, but had cleared off, and how sweet the warm earth smelled in that quiet English twilight.

Suddenly Bobbie stopped dead still and looked at the ground. Then he ran back to me, and I could see he was frightened.

"What is it?" I asked.

"There is a big snake there!" gasped Bobbie.

I walked up to what Bobby thought was a snake and examined it from a distance.

"It's a blind worm," I answered.

"But, Foxy Grandpa, "he has a snake's tongue. Look at that forked tongue of his—exactly like a serpent!"

"That may be, too," I said, "but that creature is not a snake. He is a lizard without any feet.

"Look, Bobby," said I. "You see he has no yellow spots behind his head, like a viper. Neither has he any markings down his back like a snake. He won't hurt you. He's really a good little fellow and will keep a garden free from slugs without any wages. Lean down and look at him. He wouldn't bite you for the world."

Bobby hesitated for a moment and the nappreached the little lizard carefully.

He leaned down and was about to make a thorough investigation when he jumped back.

The blind worm was jumping up and down like a jumping jack!

Bobby was so surprised that he really didn't see what happened. But I will tell you.

When the blind worm saw Bobby lean over he thought he was in danger, so he employed the means for safety which is his family's trick.

That blind worm began to wiggle and jump and in a moment had loosened himself from his tail and crep off, while all that Bobby saw was the jumping tail.

This continued for some time after, too.

Bobby looked at me thunderstruck.

"Pretty good protection," I said. "You're doing just what that little lizard wanted you to. You're watching his tail jump, while he has crept off to safety."

"Will he ever get another tail?" asked Bobby.

"Growing a new tail means nothing in the life of a blind worm," answered Bunny gravely.

3 MINUTE JOURNEYS

By Temple Manning

MODERN astronomers have not been able to convince the Hindus that a solar eclipse is simply a natural phenomenon. They see in it some vicious attempt to dull the brilliance of the Brahman of the heavens. The wicked Rahu, parish of the heavens, casts his shadow over the sun and everything upon which this polluted light falls must be cleansed and purified.

The Hindu takes no food or drink during the eclipse. He breaks all his earthenware pots and cleanses very thoroughly all his house once. He throws away all cooked food and drinking water that may be in his house. And he offers alms to the parishs of earth as a ransom to the parish of heaven, to unveil the sun.

But more than these symbolic means of purification, the religious Hindu, must cleanse himself physically to wash away this taint. He must bathe in the flowing water of a stream. If he bathes in one of the holy rivers, the cleansing is far more efficacious.

This is a great day for the beggars, for every devout Hindu must be generous to the pariahs if he wishes to be cleansed. All the monstrosities of the countryside, cripples of every sort, young and old, come to this meeting ground to beg. They sit down and spread a filthy cloth before them. On this they collect the coins and grain that are flung to them. Women will come out of the water, their wet garments clinging to them and distribute grain among all the beggars.

How would you like to have your children condemned to toil seven days a week and every week of the year?

How would you like such a life yourself?

How does such a life harmonize with all our loud boastings about the glorious land we live in, with all its freedom, all its opportunities, all its riches, riches passing those ever enjoyed by any other nation on the face of the earth?

To be sentenced to work every week-day, every Sunday, every holiday from New Year's Day to New Year's Eve may have been all right in other centuries, but it is all wrong in this Twentieth Century in this abundantly blessed democracy. How can family life, how can rational home life, how can national life progress and flourish if seven-day work-weeks are to prevail? How can rational home life and a seven-day week cannot exist together.

Shall the United States sacrifice home life?

Or shall it do away with the seven-day week?

To ask the question is to answer it.

That the seven-day week still abounds on America's railroads is convincingly proved by the stacks of letters pouring into the writer of this column from all parts of the continent. Figures have been given in previous columns from two railroad way labor leaders. Now would you like to live under the conditions described in the following brief extracts from other communications just received?

The first is from New Jersey:

"I work on railway section gang over thirty years, would say I have lost four hours in four years. That was in case of the near death of one of the family. I have had but one week's vacation in about thirty-two years. That was about 1902. And with the time I have worked nights without pay, years ago, I have not lost an hour since 1892. I could not afford to lose the time. I never go to the funeral of a friend. I have been to three funerals in over thirty years, father, mother and brother. I didn't stop work, only for the funeral.

"Just to show you where we get off from working every day, this morning I thought was Saturday and I sent to the bank for change to carry over Sunday, when I found out it is Tuesday. Many others are doing as I am doing.

"My self will say Saturday nights, 'if you only didn't have to work Sunday.' I haven't been in a church for over twenty years."

From Baltimore comes this:

"There are trainmen right in the Camden yard in Maryland here that work every day in the week eight-hour straight through, so they will keep another brakeman out of a day's work. They work 'tied up' eight-hour day, with time and one-half for overtime, and they work straight through for straight time. People lives are endangered by men half asleep by such work."

Chicago railway worker writes, in part:

"Mr. Samuel O. Dunn's defence of the railroads as regards the seven-day week and 365 days a year is unfair and misleading. It may be true that certain classes of employes may draw big salaries and have vacations with pay and be paid while sick. But what has that to do with the class of employes that work all the time? Does anything an average give these men any time off, or raise their salary, to meet the high cost of living?

"What about the crossing watchmen that work 365 days a year without any vacation and are docked for time lost for sickness and are paid $82 to $85 per month, providing they work all the days there are in the month? The crossing watchmen on the Chicago Terminal Division of the Pennsylvania Lines, of which I am a member, have been trying for three years to negotiate with the officials whereby we would be allowed at least two days off per month with pay. But we have been unsuccessful."

This comes from California:

"In California, on the division on which I am employed in the photograph department, I have made investigation and find 111 employes working seven days a week for 365 days per year and 26 working 6 days of the week. This is about an average for all railroads in the West.

"The prevailing rate of pay for telegraphers is 62½ cents per hour, some getting 67 cents and some as low as 64½. Unless they worked every day in the week they would not support a small family with the price of living as high as it is."

If there be any railroad president who regards the seven-day week as good enough for American citizens, American husbands, American parents, let him speak up.

If our railroad presidents do not think the seven-day week worthy of endorsement by this enlightened nation, what do they propose to do about it?

DURANT 'PAPER MILLIONS' ARE LOOKING REAL

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

When U. S. Cast Iron Pipe was selling well below its record figure touched yesterday with an advance of more than 18 points, W. C. Durant, former Boston "auto wizard," was reported to have a paper profit of more than $2,000,000.

W. C. Durant.

The latest advance makes those paper millions look real, for, with the heavy turnover involved, Mr. Durant has had plenty of opportunity, it would seem, to take profits. If the advance has come to take profits, it can be taken as pretty well assured Mr. Durant has been taking them, for he is today credited with being one of the most astute gentlemen in the stock market.

Two years ago a "pup" kicking around the market, now one of the biggest of "rich man's stocks," is the record of Cast Iron Pipe. Its charge through the $200-price level attracted considerable attention to its remarkable earnings record and caused further reports of what would be the resulting benefits to stockholders.

Recapitalization and stock distributions appear to be inevitable, in the opinion of many brokers, but whether the situation in American Can, there is no expectation of early action thereon.

In fact, according to those closest to the company, there is no desire on the part of the management to make an early distribution. Income of the current year is expected to top the record showing of 1924, and until the potentialities of the new business resulting from its new pipe process are clearly evidenced, it is thought, there is not likely to be any definite decision as to rearrangement of capitalization.

Hugh Pendexter, the Norway Mr. Merrifield, writes from Duluth, Minn., that it is Tuesday. Many others are doing as I am doing.

"My self will say Saturday nights, 'if you only didn't have to work Sunday.' I haven't been in a church for over twenty years."

STOCK DIVIDEND ON CAN IS POSSIBILITY

Steady absorption of American Can at record high price levels caused rumors current today that the tallied splitting up of the stock was not far removed. Directors meet the last Tuesday each month. There is no possibility of a cash dividend being announced at the March meeting. General expectation is that the stock dividend will be up on a basis to allow dividends on the new shares be equal to a $10 annual rate on the existing stock. However, the high registered this week would appear to discount considerably more than a $10 return to present stockholders, so that the belief is spreading that a stock dividend may also be declared at the March meeting.

OPINIONS DIFFER ON SUGAR PRICE TREND

There is considerable difference of opinion as to the trend of sugar prices. Many believe that the commodity is close to a decided turn, while others do not. Included in the former group are interests who have been accumulating Cuba Cane Sugar preferred, due to a belief that any improvement in the industry as a result in resumption of discussion of payment on account of back dividends on the preferred is in sight. There was some likes on part of directors of authorizing a payment a year ago, but collapse of sugar market postponed such action. The trend of raw sugar prices will probably again be the dominating influence in any consideration at the coming directors' meeting.

NEW ENGLAND CO.'S DIVIDEND IS RAISED

Directors of New England Co., which controls the New England Power System, have declared dividend of 1¾ per cent. on common stock, payable Feb. 14 to stock of record Jan. 31. Formerly dividends were paid semi-annually in May and November at rate of 2 per cent. It is understood that the current dividend may be considered a quarterly disbursement.

GOOD TONE IS DISPLAYED IN WALL STREET

Stocks displayed a good tone in trading around noon in Wall Street today.

There was considerable irregularity at the opening. Motors were strong in reflection of the raising of General Motors dividend. Stewart-Warner advancing 1¼ points, Maxwell A 1¼ and a number of others improving fractionally. General Motors opened slightly lower on the radio final "selling on the good news."

General Electric opened 1¾ lower on selling inspired by the United States Government decision to investigate the company as an alleged monopoly.

American Sugar started up 1¾ above Monday's closing.

McCrory Stores B broke 4 points in reflection of speculative disappointment over the failure of the directors to increase the dividend. General Electric extended its loss to 2¾ points and Baldwin sagged 1¾. American Can touched a record top at 172½ and then fell 2 points from the top.

The rest of the list headed upward under the leadership of U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, which soared 19 points to 228, a record top.

Commercial Solvents A and B advanced 3 and 4¼ points, respectively, and General Motors touched a new top at 79.

Among the many issues to advance a point or more were American Sugar Refining, Hudson and Jordan Motors, Famous Players-Lasky, Loose Wiles Biscuit, duPont and Independent Oil & Gas.

W. C. Durant has been elected a director of Independent Oil & Gas. A special meeting of stockholders will be held shortly to approve a proposed reduction in the no par value stock from 450,000 shares outstanding to 225,000 shares on the exchange basis of one share of new for two of old.

Bingham Mines Active and at Record Top in Boston

Bingham Mines was again active today and at a record top on the move in Boston Exchange trading. Aside from this issue the local market generally was quiet with price changes mostly narrow.

Ernest G. Howes, president of Howes Bros. Co., sole leather merchants, says: "The leather business for this year has taken on an entirely different aspect than that prevailed at any time since the deflation period started in 1920. Stocks of merchants are down to a sound basis, and are being reduced each month. Tanning operations have not increased, which means a further reduction of stocks on hand.

"The tanning industry is looking forward into the year with confidence in the industry's ability to show a fair profit. Hides, it is thought, would possess twice the market value they represent today if they were on the same basis as other staple raw materials."

$6,000,000 COTTON MILL MERGER MADE IN TEXAS

A large cotton merger was made in Texas when the C. R. Miller Manufacturing Company of Dallas and Waco announced that it had acquired the Texas Cotton Mills at McKenney and the Dallas Textile Mills at Love Field. It is understood that more than $6,000,000 was involved in the deal.

The C. R. Miller Manufacturing Company also plans to build an additional mill for the manufacture of towels at Dallas. It is understood that day and night shifts will be employed in the newly acquired mills.

This makes a total of twenty-nine cotton mills in operation in Texas.

1924 IS BIGGEST AND BEST GILLETTE YEAR

Report of Gillette Safety Razor Co. for the calendar year 1924 shows net earnings after taxes, reserves, etc., of $10,122,473, equal to $5.06 a share on the 2,000,000 no par shares outstanding at the end of the year.

In previous years net earnings were reported before taxes, reserves, etc. They amounted in 1923 to $11,776 in 1923, $7,602,939 in 1922, $7,608,564 in 1921, $6,803,407 in 1920, and $6,025,350 in 1919. These earnings were equivalent in 1923 to $25.18 a share on 334,215 shares and $26.97 a share in 1922 on 303,170 shares.

'FRISCO EARNINGS FOR JANUARY ARE HIGHER

Preliminary earnings figures of the St. Louis San Francisco Railway for January indicate that surplus after charges will exceed the amount for both December and January 1924, reaching about $1.25 a share on the common stock. Comparison with 1924's average monthly earnings of 58 cents a share on the common for the first eight months last year was said to give prospects for a record year in 1925. February gross revenue is running about 14 per cent. ahead of 1924.

NEW HAVEN EARNINGS HIGHER FOR QUARTER

New Haven reports to Department of Public Utilities net profit for quarter ended Dec. 31, 1924, of $1,528,332 against net of $1,141,706 in same period of 1923.

Liquidating Dividend

Conley Tin Foil Corporation declared a first liquidating dividend of $14 a share on stock, payable Feb. 16.

R. P. PREBLE INCOME TAX BOOK IS USEFUL

R. P. Preble of Paine, Webber & Co., Boston, has prepared a useful booklet under the title of "Federal Income Taxes as Affecting Individuals, Estates and Bond Yields." The booklet contains information regarding a special provision for reduced taxes on "earned income" under the "Revenue Act of 1924," which did not exist under previous acts. Individual income tax tables are included, showing tax rates and amounts of tax on net income subject to normal tax and of a citizen or resident entitled to a personal exemption of $2,500, exclude in 1925 and subsequent years; rates of tax and amounts of surtaxes payable in 1925 and subsequent years; rates of tax and exemptions (either or resident) effect of Federal Income Tax on bond yields; and instructions showing how to calculate amount of income tax.

UNITED DRUG REPORTS SALES AT NEW PEAK

In the forthcoming report of the United Drug Co. for the calendar year 1924 total sales of approximately $70,000,000 will be shown. This is the largest sales volume in the company's history; it will compare with $67,244,873 in the preceding year and $66,043,179 in 1920, the previous record period.

Net income before bond interest and Federal taxes approximated $6,700,000, by far the largest profit figure in the company's career. Assuming $2,400,000 as being sufficient to cover bond interest charges, funded debt and dividends on first preferred stock, the final balance amounts to about $4,300,000, or something over $12 per share on the 357,000 shares of common.

In 1923 United Drug reported net profits of $8.39 per share of common.

MACK TRUCK EARNINGS FOR 1924 RUN HIGH

Mack Trucks Co. declared regular quarterly dividends of $1.50 on common and $1.75 on first and second preferred, payable March 31. Preliminary statement for 1924 indiates net after all deductions $6,200,000, against $7,602,939 in 1923, or $18 a share, against $20.71 in 1923; net quick assets will be in excess of $28,000,000.

UNFILLED ORDERS FOR U. S. STEEL LARGER

Unfilled orders of U. S. Steel Corporation on January 31, just made public, totalled 5,037,323 tons, an increase of 229,647 tons, compared with end of preceding month.

SELECTMAN ANXIOUS TO CONTINUE B. & M. FIGHT

In order to continue the fight against abandonment of the branch lines of the Boston & Maine, Selectman Charles F. Young of Wakefield has announced his candidacy for re-election. Roland W. Butters and Arthur L. Newcomb will be candidates for re-election while, Chairman Arthur L. Gardner and Albert L. Evans will retire. Perley H. Walton of the Montrose section is the only new candidate, leaving one more vacancy yet to be filled. It is understood that in other Wakefield town offices the incumbents whose terms expire this year will all be candidates for re-election.

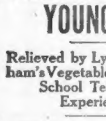
AILMENTS OF YOUNG GIRLS

Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

School Teacher's Experience



Evanston, Wyoming—"A few years ago I had troubles every month such as girls often have, and would suffer awfully every time. I was teaching school and it made it hard for me as I had to go to bed for two or three days. One day my brother suggested that I take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and it did wonders for me. In the course of a year I married and after my first baby was born I got up too soon and it caused a displacement. This nearly killed me. I could hardly walk or do my housework. I knew what the Vegetable Compound did for me before so I took it again. It strengthened me and now I have five little kiddies. The eldest is six, the baby is five months old and I have twin boys three years old and a boy of five years. I do all my own housework, washing and ironing, and I never felt better in my life. I owe my health to your wonderful medicine."—Mrs. VERBENA CARPENTER, 127 2nd Avenue, Evanston, Wyoming.

A recent canvass reports 98 out of every 100 women are benefited by

"THE MISLEADING LADY" A PLEASING COMEDY

It's just one laugh after another. That is about as brief and fully descriptive a narration of "The Misleading Lady," being presented at the Copley theatre by the members of the Boston Stock Co., as could be told.

"The Misleading Lady" is a story of a fascinating young woman, Helen Steel; whose pleasure in life consists of flirting and playing with the affections of men, according as her whims dictate. To practice these whims she chooses for her plaything Jack Craigen. After inviting him to a house party, so that she might play with him in front of the guests, she succeeds in making him propose to her.

Realizing what he has done, Craigen becomes angered and carries the young lady to his hunting camp to teach her a lesson. What takes place there must be seen to be appreciated.

PARAMOUNT TWIN-BILL AT LOEW'S STATE

A thoroughly enjoyable picture program was witnessed at Loew's State Theatre yesterday, where two of Paramount's newest offerings were screened. The principal feature was Agnes Ayres in "Tomorrow's Love," a delightful story dedicated to the "perfect" husband, if such there be, and Richard Dix in "A Man Must Live," an adaptation from the novel "Jungle Law."

"Tomorrow's Love" is a merry marriage mix-up of a young wife who divorces her hubby, the girl then decides she can't live without him, and a "perfect" husband.

In "A Man Must Live," Mr. Dix plays the role of what is said to be "the greatest city hall political reporter." As Geoffrey Farnell, Dix returns from the World War and gets a job on a newspaper. He falls upon a story that promises to be the greatest thing his paper ever ran. But it means the exposure and ruin of a fellow who served by his side in France. Jacqueline Logan heads the supporting cast. Other screen subjects were also shown.

"THE GIRL FROM CHILD'S" AT SOMERVILLE THEATRE

"The Girl From Child's" made her bow at the Somerville Theatre last night, and long before the play had passed the half-way mark it was hailed as one of the very best entertainments that the Somerville Theatre players have offered their patrons this season. The play has everything that playgoers like, and there isn't a dull moment all evening long. Mary Asbury, the girl from Childs, Mury Ann Dentler gave an inspiring characterization.

The story is that of a waitress who marries a young man whose family objects strongly to fashionable society, and who turns out to be a cad and a crook. Edward Clark Lilley, Frank Thomas, Phil Sheffield, Lois Landon, Ruth Lyons, Jane Stuart and Booth Howard gave excellent account of themselves in supporting roles.

"Throwing Money to the Birds—Sowing Sorrow"

One More Dull Sermon on Economy—To One Who Travels Through This World Money Is as Important as Quinine to the Traveler in a Fever Country

"The only way to have money to burn is not to burn it."

That is slangy, not the best of English, but it is the best of common sense.

To be able to spend enough when you are old, you must spend what seems too little while you are young.

Ahead of you is old age, waiting.

There is the old age, dignified, independent, happy—the best time in life, when foolish fires have died out, regretted follies are almost forgotten, no more harm or falsehood need be feared, and the mind, mature, studies life and other worlds quietly and hopefully.

There is the old age toward which so many are drifting—the old age of poverty, sorrow, humiliation and dependence.

Nothing is more dreadful than to be old, dependent upon others AND NOT WANTED.

The bread of charity or the bread coldly doled out as an unwelcome duty is bitter in the mouth. And thousands that see this will learn the taste of that bread.

Extravagance is a curse, and the extravagant, wasteful human being is accursed.

The vice of spending and buying needlessly destroys the pleasure of possession, the real happiness that might be enjoyed.

The most extravagant man is he who considers himself not extravagant at all. The boy who inherits a fortune and squanders it is not extravagant. He is a maniac, the poor, diseased victim of a diseased civilization which brings about the destruction of the child through the fruits of the father's industry.

The really extravagant young man is he who has a small income of salary, fifteen, twenty or thirty dollars a week.

The man reckless of water is not he who lives on an island in a big lake, but he who finds himself with a small supply of water in the middle of a dry desert.

If the latter is careful in the use of water he will cross the sand in safety; if not, he will die and contribute one more skeleton to the desert.

If the man of small income is careful and saving, he will cross the dangerous period of young manhood safely and reach the other side strong and independent. If not, he will add one more skeleton of failure to the desert of foolishness.

Don't deceive yourself and say that with such an income as yours it is impossible to save.

If it is possible for you to live, IT IS POSSIBLE FOR YOU TO SAVE.

George M. Pullman, Marshall Field and John D. Rockefeller all saved the basis of big success out of less money per week than tens of thousands of young men on small salaries spend for their weekly luncheons.

The young man typical of the big cities who ends the week "just about even or a little in debt," who usually borrows something on Friday to repay on Saturday, is the really extravagant man, the one throwing away his chance.

The greatest advantage in economy, a fact that you can see in the lives of thousands of successful men, is not in the money saved, but habits formed, self-control acquired, and in work that the mind does in place of the follies that go with extravagance.

There isn't a young man in good health with an average small income who could not, IF HE WOULD, make himself an independent man able to laugh at the terrors of old age and poverty.

The salvation of a traveler in a fever country is his supply of quinine pills that will fight the fever that enters his blood.

If you saw a man traveling in such a country scattering those precious pills to the birds and plunging on to certain destruction, how would you describe his folly?

How can you describe the folly of an individual who scatters, in youth, the money, the strength, the WILL that might have made that youth glorious and old age dignified, independent and honorable?

"Baby Volstead" Act

Too Much Law, Judge Bruce Says, Cautioning Us That an "Excess of Law Is Tyranny"

Responding to a plea to put Massachusetts in line with other States by passing a State law paralleling the Volstead Act, the voters of Massachusetts at the November election gave their approval to a so-called "Baby Volstead" law.

This law, it now develops, is so loosely drawn in certain paragraphs that it is possible to charge the motorman of a trolley car, or the engineer of a railroad train, with "illegal transportation" if one of his PASSENGERS is found to have liquor in his possession.

Far fetched? Preposterous?

Maybe, but nevertheless it is the law.

"And not only that," according to Judge Charles M. Bruce of the Malden District Court, "but under a strict interpretation of the law the man who buys a small quantity of liquor ON A DOCTOR'S PRESCRIPTION may be charged with 'illegal transportation' if he carries it home in his automobile."

In order strictly to maintain his standing as a law-abiding citizen, the Malden justice says, our friend with the prescription pint must WALK ON FOOT with it to his destination.

Massachusetts, Judge Bruce thinks, is suffering from too much law.

"An excess of law," he says, "is tyranny; and we are getting pretty close to that position."

When the extremely conservative judges of our district courts begin to talk like this it is time for the earnest and INTELLIGENT friends of prohibition to pay attention.

The loose kinks in the Baby Volstead act should be straightened out and the time to do it is while the Legislature is in session.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

MY daughter, the folly of men causeth cynics to smile; but the folly of women maketh the ANGELS to weep and gnash their teeth.

Go to. A man putteth aside his troubles with his office coat and forgetteth them. But a woman clingeth to her sorrow and cherisheth its memory. Yea, she layeth it away in lavender until it is sweeter than myrrh.

Helen Rowland

A man saith: "Lo, this love hath smitten me!" and proceedeth to bury his heartache beneath a crossword puzzle and a game of golf.

But a woman locketh herself IN, and nurseth her soul-bruises behind closed doors, rejoicing in self-pity.

A man saith: "The dark-eyed damsel hath wounded mine aplomb and stung me in my vanity; but the blonds shall soothe it with gracious smiles and soul-kisses."

But a woman saith: "Alas, he findeth me no longer pleasing, and I am a frost! Therefore, am I finished; for the kiss of another would be but an anti-climax!"

A man saith: "Love is dead. Let it rest in peace!" and flingeth a handful of earth upon its grave, departeth in search of consolation and forgetfulness.

But a woman burneth candles to a dead love, and performeth an autopsy thereon. Her post-mortems are harrowing.

When a man saith: "Good-bye," he meaneth "Farewell, forever!" But when a woman saith, "Farewell, forever!" she meaneth, "Good-bye—until tomorrow."

A man remembereth longest a woman's first kiss. For that is the one for which he had to struggle. The rest were SO easy!

But a woman cherisheth longest the memory of a man's last kiss. For that is the one for which she had to plead.

A man plungeth into a love-affair and cut again as he plungeth into the water. But a woman goeth step by step, and is not content until she is over her head. She floateth in her folly.

When he feeleth love "coming on," a man rusheth in search of a preventive, even a blonde, or a new game, or a trip abroad.

But a woman giveth herself up to it, as to a headache, and letteth nature take its course!

Thus, doth love "go harder" with a woman than with a man. For a woman is never content, unless she is SUFFERING over some man.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

EARTH is girt about with beauty, surging ever like a flood, loveliness of dusk and dawning, charm that lurks in leaf and bud. In its desolate, waste spaces Nature still her magic weaves, lavish with her tints in deserts as upon the forest leaves. Roses grace the stately gardens, daisies gild the windswept lea, lilies smile from still pools' mirrors and the seaweed stars the sea. Loveliness unfolds forever, pearls are washed upon the strand, and the cactus' golden flower glows against the desert sand. Orchids bloom in jungle places, from the swamp the iris springs and across the loneliest valley floats the song the linnet sings. To each spot its share of beauty, changing lights in sky and sea, to each soul its meed of gladness and its sweet strangulith.

Hard to Get Along

Helping Hand Editor:

My mother is a widow and there are seven children, girls fourteen, ten, eight and two, and boys twelve, six and four. Mother has not been able to work for several weeks on account of a sprained ankle, and we find it very hard to get along. I am the oldest girl, fourteen, and cannot go to school for want of shoes size 5. My mother also needs shoes, size 7, and my little sister, size 6. Anything will be acceptable, as mother can make over.

J. C. 1.

Thanks From Many

Thanks from Mrs. B. E. S., Jonesport, Me., to Mrs. O. for slippers; Mrs. L. O. R., Fitchburg, to Mrs. S. W., Marlboro, for box; Harriet G., South Boston, to party in Dorchester for dresses and shoes; Mrs. A. J. H., Springfield, to F. D., Greenwood, for overcoat; A. P., Manchester, N. H., to kind reader who sent money; Mrs. E. McC., South Boston, to Mrs. P., Dorchester, for baby clothes; Mrs. G. B., Cambridge, to Mrs. R. M. F., Millbury, for children's clothes.

Large Family In Need

Helping Hand Editor:

We are a big family, five boys, eighteen, sixteen, fourteen, six, three and two years old, and six girls, eighteen, fifteen, ten, twelve, eight and five. My father makes very small pay and the older children are unable to find any work. We need warm bed clothing, as our house is very cold and we have to use old coats to eke out what few blankets we have. We all need stockings, underwear, etc. Someone please help us.

ALICE.

Other Needy Ones

Mrs. M. D., mother of seven children, husband out of work, would like someone in Cambridge to give her two boys, twelve and fourteen, work afternoons and Saturday all day, doing errands or in store.

Mrs. M. M. would like to adopt a little boy between the ages of two and three. Will have the best of everything.

Mrs. A. S. needs a couch mattress. Can't afford to buy one. Widow with two small children.

Mrs. D. I needs clothes badly for girls twelve, ten, four and two and baby two months. Husband only working on half time.

Mrs. C. W. F., mother of five children, expects stork in Spring and would be thankful for baby clothes.

Mrs. C. C. needs clothes for girl seven, boy four and baby one and for herself, 38.

Mrs. Rose H., mother of five children, two girls, ten and eight, and boys six, four and two, is expecting stork and in need of clothing for the newcomer and children. Latter need underclothing and shoes.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Imitation pleases because it affords matter for inquiring into the truth or falsehood of imitation, by comparing its likeness or unlikeness to the original.

The readiest way to entangle the mind with false doctrine is first to entice the will to wanton living.

'Tis a great error to take facility for good nature; tenderness without discretion is no better than a more pardonable folly.

Humility in man consists not in denying any gift that is in him, but a just valuation of it, rather thinking no meanly than too highly.

INDIRECT BENEFIT OF TAXING THE RICH

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE Income Tax, the Surtax and other taxes devised to bear especially upon the rich are not wholly harmful to business in their consequences.

It is true they drive rich people out of the investment field. They invest their money in tax-exempt securities or indulge in stock speculation, or do anything except put it into legitimate business.

In the meanwhile, business must have capital, and is forced to look for it in another place. It seeks it among the moderately well-to-do, in other words, it goes after the small investor.

Therefore the extreme taxes upon the rich compel industry to seek its capital from the small investor.

The consequence is, as Mr. B. C. Forbes says, "America has more 'customer owners' of securities today than the total number of security owners in the whole country ten years ago.

"Also, there are more employee subscribers for stocks today than the total number of stockholders in America before the war."

He states that during 1924 electric light and power companies alone have sold nearly two hundred million dollars' worth of their securities through customer ownership campaigns.

Many companies in seeking new capital have turned to the small investor. He has not much money, but there are "a lot of him." Many a little makes a mickle. And just as the success of a product depends upon the number of its customers at a small profit, so on the other hand the success of a capitalistic investment rests upon the number of its investors at small amounts.

Within the next few years, electric light and power companies are going to need a good deal of capital for their development. If some plan is devised for them to seek this capital from the small man their business will rest upon a much firmer basis than by seeking capital from wealthy persons.

Seeking money from small investors implies winning the popular confidence and the confidence of consumers. It implies making every employee an investor and a plugger for his concern. It humanizes the whole business, and if some means can be devised for seeking it easily, it is the best form of capitalization.

Mr. R. H. Ballard of the Southern California Edison Company has done much in this direction since he has been President of the National Electric Light Association.

HOW TIME AND SPACE ARE RELATED

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

"In finding the difference of time between two places on the earth it is only necessary to know the longitude angle in degrees between the places and divide by 15. Why divide by 15? A. T. K., Boston."

BECAUSE there are 24 hours in a day and 360 degrees of longitude in the circumference of the earth, so that every hour corresponds to 15 degrees, 24 going into 360 just 15 times.

Since an hour corresponds to 15 degrees, a minute corresponds to 1-60th of 15 degrees, or to one-quarter of a degree, which is equal to 15 minutes-of-arc. And a second corresponds, in like manner, to one-quarter of a minute-of-arc, which is equal to a hundredth of a mile by the earth's rotation.

It is very interesting to know how much time, or distance, on the earth's surface corresponds to the various divisions of time. In visualizing time in terms of space we are going back to the practice of our red-skin predecessors on this continent.

They knew nothing about miles in traveling; they knew only hours and fractions of an hour. Their days were "suns," and their hours only roughly reckoned portions of aday, measured by the distances that could be traveled.

Thus they unconsciously Einsteinized time, blending it inseparably with their ideas of space or distance. Both space and time were conceptions too abstract for their mental training. A month was a "moon" as a day was a "sun."

We in the midst of our civilized learning are apt to forget that neither an hour nor a day, a month nor a year, has any significance independent of certain movements of which we become aware through our senses.

Some of these movements, as those of clock-hands, we have ourselves invented; the greater ones belong to nature. If we were lost in the depths of interstellar space we would lose the sense of time, except so far as physiological processes might remind us of our old measures of it.

But let us see what spaces hours, minutes and seconds correspond to upon the earth's surface. Curiously enough, it may seem, this depends upon the latitude in which we are.

On the equator an hour corresponds to about 1,037 miles of space or distance. But in the latitude of 40 degrees an hour corresponds to only about 800 miles, while at the poles it has no spatial equivalent at all.

In latitude 40 degrees a minute corresponds to about 12 1-3 miles, and a second to about 1,162 feet. That is, between two ticks of a clock a person in latitude 40 degrees is borne eastward more than a fifth of a mile by the earth's rotation.

It is worth recalling that a nautical mile, which is a very sensible mile, indeed, equals one-sixtieth of a degree on the equator. Its length measured spatially is 6087 feet, and measured in time units it is equivalent to four seconds.

But all of these things are local inventions, having only a local application; that is, they suit conditions on the earth, but do not govern things beyond the earth.

On Jupiter the period corresponding to a day is only about ten of our hours, and the spaces corresponding to hours on that planet are enormously long by our standards, since Jupiter is about eleven times greater in circuit than the earth.

On the moon time lags, a lunar day being about a month in length. Only the Martians have time units nearly the same as ours, their days neither an hour nor a day, a month nor a year, has any significance independent of certain movements of our clocks.

ONCE-OVERS

PASSIVENESS PREVENTS PROGRESS

What is your aim?

Have you an objective, or are you entirely without one?

Why are you alive and what are you going to do about it?

Are you satisfied that you can make enough to keep the breath of life in your body and suffer little discomfort?

In fact, you often think of your position and wonder if you must go on and on as you are now doing.

If that is the way you feel about it you have reached your limit unless you at once make a change in your attitude.

You should resolve to better yourself although it may seem uprooting yourself from the friendly ties.

Your present environment pleases you and the little effort required pleases your passive nature.

And it is this passive nature which is a block to your progress.

Unwilling to work hard enough to change your daily routine for the better, you go on years after year, without bettering your present position.

All it requires is a definite idea of what you want to do and then get at it, but lazy indifference has put your ambition to sleep.
